

After a Delayed Start... Summer Finally Arrived

CUTE AND COOL

A CONE HELPS

KINGSTON
Ulster County residents were hard put to find ways to "cool it" Tuesday as temperatures climbed to the first real high of the summer season.

Heat and humidity combined in steamy tropical haze to bring out all manner of backyard pools, cooling food and drink and a hanky to mop the dripping brow.

More of the same is in the forecast through Friday with showers—what else is new—Thursday afternoon and Friday afternoon. Temperatures are expected to stay in the high 80s and low 90s through the period.

Tuesday's high was 90 degrees in Kingston marking only the second 90 reading for the summer. The previous 90 mark was on July 2. Certainly no records were set by either day. According to Norwood Locke of the city engineer's office, the highest reading ever for Kingston was 106, repeated July 9, 13 and 14 in 1936. The good old days were the warm old days.

The summer temperatures were combined with humidity readings which never dropped below 85 per cent Tuesday and that situation is likely to increase rather than decrease as the predicted afternoon showers move into the area later in the week.

To some, it is a welcome change from the month of June which saw practically no sunshine and set record lows on five days. Overnight readings in the 40s were commonplace during the month which recorded a total of 6.92 inches of rain including the havoc of Hurricane Agnes.

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation faced with an increase in power demands from air conditioners and fans anticipates adequate supplies. A spokesman said today that no problems have been experienced as yet and there is no reason to expect any.

But it is summer at last and the best approach should be one of relax and enjoy.

WHEEW IT'S HOT

IT REALLY IS!

Viet Withdrawal Key Plank

Dem Platform Reflects McGovern Views

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Democratic National Convention gave Sen. George McGovern today the kind of platform he sought, rebuffing a personal plea that Gov. George C. Wallace made from his wheelchair for a strikingly different party document.

Reflecting in general the views of the man whose nomination now is assured, the platform calls for immediate withdrawal from Vietnam, closing of tax loopholes, replacing the welfare system with income grants and recognition of busing as one means of achieving quality education.

The delegates stayed in session from 7:30 p.m. Tuesday until 6:25 a.m. today to complete their work on the platform.

In another development, two men were taken into custody today by Secret Service agents and the FBI outside Sen. George McGovern's hotel.

Two pistols were taken from their car.

Both men were black and wore jeans. They were taken into custody shortly after McGovern concluded a meeting on the 17th floor in the penthouse suite of the Doral Beach Hotel with six Democratic governors.

The convention gave the Alabama governor, crippled by a would-be assassin's bullets, a two-minute ovation when he was wheeled to the podium. It listened respectfully to his firm-voiced argument that it should appeal to the "75 to 80 per cent of the American people (who) are against senseless, asinine busing of school children," and, in other respects as well, largely rewrite the draft platform.

But later it shouted down, one by one, the Wallace proposals.

An even clearer demonstration of McGovern power came when the convention defeated a number of amendments, with broad-based support, but which — so the candidate's emissaries said — would be embarrassing in the campaign.

These included proposed planks favoring liberal abortion policies, nondiscrimination against homosexuals, and major goals of the National Welfare Rights Organization — a $6,500 income guarantee for a family of four, rollback of rents, government takeover and repair of substandard housing.

The majority version of the platform, adopted almost unchanged, ranges widely. Among its provisions are elimination of "unfair" Nixon administration wage-price controls, strengthened antitrust laws to break up conglomerates and to "deconcentrate" near monopolies—with the automobile industry cited as an example—emphasis on rights of women, curbs on the congressional seniority system and insistence on open meetings, stiff controls on handguns, abolition of capital punishment and firm control of military spending.

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine had dropped out of the race Tuesday.

Some labor leaders who had supported Humphrey, including President I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers Union, threw their support to Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

BELLA BELLOWS—Rep. Bella Abzug (L) rushes up to actress Shirley MacLaine (R), sitting in first row of the California delegation in Convention Hall and accuses her of being part of a McGovern lobbying effort to prevent the Democratic Convention from adopting a pro-abortion plank. Wagging her finger, Mrs. Abzug shouts, "we want a vote on abortion and we're going to have a vote on abortion." Among those listening is Actress Marlo Thomas, daughter of Comedian Danny Thomas. Mc Seeking Running Mate

MIAMI BEACH, UPI—Sen. George McGovern, his own nomination in the bag, today was reported eyeing five possible running-mates including reluctant Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, a Jew, also was on the list of possibilities supplied to newsmen by Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's senior advisor.

Kennedy, vacationing at Cape Cod, continued to insist he was not running. He appeared almost to have locked the door, even to a specific request by the presidential nominee.

Ribicoff also said he did not want second place on the ticket. However, some political observers here considered him a good prospect in terms of what kind of help McGovern needs.

By most estimates, apparently including his own, the South Dakota senator lacks the Jewish support he might require to carry such pivotal states as New York and California.

Doubts have been expressed among Jews about McGovern's past commitment to support continued arms aid for Israel in her contest with Soviet-backed Arab states.

Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska, former Massachusetts Gov. Endicott Peabody, and a New York certified public accountant named Stanley Arnold were seeking the Democratic vice presidential nomination. They were not given much chance.

None of them was on Mankiewicz' list of possibilities which included, besides Kennedy and Ribicoff, Sens. Thomas Eagleton of Missouri and Philip A. Hart of Michigan, and Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, who delivered the convention keynote speech Tuesday night.

In another conversation with newsmen, Mankiewicz tossed in the name of Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers and one of the few union leaders supporting McGovern.

Ribicoff, in disavowing his own interest in the No. 2 spot, said it should be awarded to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the party's vice presidential candidate with Hubert Humphrey in 1968. Muskie said he did not want to try it again. However, he did not slam the door.

Cheers and Boos Greet Wallace

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Crippled Gov. George C. Wallace received a tumultuous welcome Tuesday night when he went before the Democratic convention to argue for platform changes. But his proposals on welfare and busing evoked both cheers and boos.

The 52-year-old Wallace, who lost the use of his legs when shot by a would-be assassin, made his first visit to convention hall late in the evening and was wheeled onto the podium about 11 p.m.

His appearance shattered the tradition that candidates normally do not speak before the convention prior to the nomination.

Although there obviously were many in the hall that disagreed with Wallace's politics, delegates rose almost to a man to pay tribute to a scrappy little governor who very nearly lost his life on the campaign trail.

Wallace said he had campaigned successfully from Florida to Michigan and in California, and wanted to share with the Democrats what he had learned in his travels.

Most of his proposals, such as those dealing with taxation, were politely received, but when he got around to welfare and the "senseless, asinine busing" of school children, boos could be heard in the crowd.

One black leaped to his feet and shouted something when Wallace finished, but his shouts were lost in the bedlam.

Other blacks raised clenched fists in black power salutes, and still others sat in stony silence.

Wallace, who has ventured from his hotel suite only a few times since the convention began, appeared much stronger than he did when he first arrived here.

His voice was steady and strong, but his oratory lacked much of the zing of the old Wallace style. He spoke for 15 minutes, running through a long list of proposals, and ended by saying that his aides would have more to say on the issues.

His wife, Cornelia, dressed in a watermelon red suit, gulped with emotion as she saw her husband wheeled into the hall. "There were times we didn't think he would make it," she said.

But Wallace seemingly was in full command. After thanking delegates for the opportunity to appear, and attempting a weak joke about having attended one campaign rally too many,

Topic at Tonight's Meeting

A section of the Town of Rosendale landfill lies submerged under several feet of water, the result of June's torrential rains. Homeowners near the site complain that their wells have been polluted by the mixture of garbage and water that has spilled over a nearby roadway into a large pond. Residents are not too keen, either, about the offensive stench they say pervades the area at night. Town officials say not much can be done except wait for the water to recede, but that won't prevent the residents from venting their feelings at tonight's Town Board meeting. Nixon Takes It Calmly

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon, his re-election campaign already geared to a faceoff with George McGovern, just nodded and returned to conferring with his advisors when told the South Dakota senator had the Democratic nomination in the bag.

Nixon had no comment to make on the Democratic choice, said Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler.

While the Democrats were reaching the windup of their contest for the nomination, Nixon was meeting Tuesday with two men who figure in his re-election planning—Robert Finch, a White House counselor and old friend who helped manage Nixon's 1968 campaign, and Caspar Weinberger, his chief budget manager.

The President was talking with Weinberger when Ziegler told him that Sens. Edmund Muskie and Hubert Humphrey had withdrawn from the race, leaving the nomination to McGovern.

"He just nodded," Ziegler said later. Representatives of the Nixon campaign organization are in Miami Beach to gather first-hand knowledge.

Although Ziegler refused to comment on McGovern's victory, it apparently did not surprise any of the President's strategists, who began several weeks ago gearing their campaign apparatus to do battle with McGovern.

They have examined most of McGovern's public pronouncements in detail and prepared counter arguments to most of his positions.

Nixon also talked by telephone with former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who arrived in Washington following a five-week round-the-world trip as the President's special representative.

Ferroxcube . . . Order

SAUGERTIES the work must be completed by March 1, 1973, Diamond said.

The Ferroxcube Corporation of Saugerties has been ordered by State Environmental Conservation Commissioner Henry L. Diamond to submit final plans for Aug. 1 for the construction of new wastewater treatment facilities.

The Ulster County metal processing plant has been discharging iron oxide, zinc and manganese into Esopus Creek, Diamond said, noting the firm has posted $15,000 bond as assurance it will comply with the state's antipollution orders.

Actual work on the treatment plant must start by Sept. 1 and Ferroxcube reportedly has been working with the Ulster County Health Department and the State Environmental Conservation Commission in working out a solution.

Diamond also announced today that the Effron Fuel Oil Company, Poughkeepsie, has paid a $500 fine in connection with an oil spill at its tank farm that polluted the Hudson River.

The commissioner said that the firm has also been ordered to begin construction by Sept. 1 on improved yard facilities that would contain any future oil spill and prevent it from reaching the river.

(Jan Yallum of Kingston is the only local delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Miami, one of six from the 25th Congressional District. She reports from the Diplomat, headquarters hotel for the New York State delegation.)

MIAMI BEACH — July 8 — The chairman will pound the gavel at 7 p.m. Monday night, but the convention's begun. It started today at Kennedy Airport, with hundreds of New York State delegates, spouses and friends gathering to board their charter flight.

One TV cameraman made his way through the ticket lines, getting shots of as many different McGovern buttons as he could find. He liked mine; it's austere, black and white, and says "The McGovern State." The Champagne flowed at the boarding gate, and we all introduced ourselves to one another: district first, then name, and asked about margins of victory and potentials for November.

The plane was 97 per cent filled with McGovern delegates. One man boarding wearing a large Muskie button; I silently gave him my personal "Profiles in Courage" award.

The stewardess family tried to clear the aisles every once in awhile so she could serve drinks and food and demonstrate the life-jacket procedure. "Extraordinary," I thought. "If we drown, we go down to the deep with proper labels." Stenciled across the life jacket was "NATL DEM." My more objective husband pointed out that it might possibly stand for National Airlines Demonstration. Okay, but it's an omen of sorts.

On the plane, the voices that have become familiar through many phone calls to and from state headquarters became attached to faces. I wandered around to find the rest of our 25th delegation — they live in Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess Counties — and Carol Henning of New Paltz, a member of the 27th CD delegation.

The Diplomat Hotel is headquarters for the Illinois delegation too, and members of the "new" delegation were all around us at the hotel desk. They had to go all the way to the Supreme Court to get their convention seats; they were having a harder time getting beds.

It's chaos at the Diplomat, but this is the quiet night. The action starts tomorrow. The New York State caucus, originally set for Monday morning, has been reset for Sunday. There's trouble brewing: a fight over the delegation chairmanship that can seriously affect party unity in the state and its ability to cohesify its factions for the election fight itself.

Obviously, that's a priority meeting. There are many caucuses and meetings for women delegates, there's a black caucus. There's a seminar for Jewish delegates and a George McGovern. I'm here to help him get the nomination. But I am equally concerned that the process in which he is nominated and the platform on which he will run will be acceptable in the pragmatic political sense. Acceptable and relevant, not HERE in this artificial lockup situation that its shuttle buses from hotel to hall, its daily convention newspaper, its TV channel devoted to convention news — My priorities? Simple. I'm a delegate from the 25th Congressional District, com where the ultimate decision of 1972 will be made in November.

Viets in Two-Pronged Attack

B52s Pound Reds Near Quang Tri

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. B52 bombers supporting a 3,500-man South Vietnamese attack on Quang Tri City dumped nearly 700 tons of explosives during the night on suspected Communist positions near the besieged provincial capital.

The U.S. command said today 27 of the huge bombers hit targets five to 13 miles from the city in the 18 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. Three of the planes struck supply caches inside North Vietnam near the port city of Dong Hoi, 35 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating the two Vietnams.

Government troops in a drive to recapture Quang Tri City, overrun by the North Vietnamese 10 weeks ago, launched a two-pronged attack Tuesday. Nearly 1,000 marines swept to the northeastern edge of town while 2,500 paratroopers pushed to the southwestern edge of the city, 432 miles north of Saigon. The Communists put up stiff resistance.

North Vietnamese gunners downed three of the U.S. Marine helicopters that ferried fighter-bomber air raids over North Vietnam to 188, most of them flown in the southern panhandle and directed against the Mu Gia Pass through the mountains into Laos. Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency (VNA) monitored in Tokyo claimed antiaircraft batteries shot down six of the raiding planes.

The U.S. command said Communist gunners hit An Loc, the besieged provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon, with 175 rounds of shellfire Tuesday but caused only light casualties, spokesmen said. Government forces reported killing 27 North Vietnamese in fighting south of the city. South Vietnamese casualties were 19 wounded.

Connally . . . Expects No Offer as Veep

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Treasury Secretary John Connally, back home after a 17-nation mission for President Nixon, says he may campaign actively for the chief executive's re-election this fall but expects no offer to be Nixon's running mate.

He also said he has no idea whether he will be considered for the job.

Sen. George McGovern, the most attractive presidential candidate and sides with Nixon on most major issues.

"I think it would be a mistake to assume that I'll sit this one out," said Connally, who resigned in May as treasury secretary amid speculation that Nixon might choose him to replace Spiro T. Agnew on the GOP ticket in November.

"It's conceivable that I could be fairly active" for Nixon, he said, but he turned aside questions suggesting that the President sent him on the five-week worldwide trip to groom him for vice president.

"I would anticipate that I wouldn't" be offered the post, he said. "As I read the tea leaves, that's not in my future." Besides, he said, reporters should ask Nixon that question.

Connally said he is still a Democrat. But, asked if he missed attending the Democratic National Convention at Miami Beach, he said, "I miss it, kind of like a man misses a sore thumb."

As for McGovern, he said, "in light of some of his policies, he's not the most attractive candidate in the country, as far as I can see."

Connally, former Texas governor who has been active in several Democratic national conventions, said he will talk to Nixon later this week at the Western White House before making a public report on his trip. But that's not all that will be discussed, he said.

"I think it would be unthinkable that the President and I got together and didn't talk a little domestic politics," he said. Connally added, though, that he has no plan to attend the Republican National Convention next month at Miami Beach.

In the brief news conference at Andrews Air Force Base, he said he hoped to be relieved of public service for a while but "you never know what's going to happen."

Gunmen Kill Three

Three Slain in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Gunmen killed three persons early today as Northern Ireland's Protestants got ready for their first big march of the summer.

Automatic fire riddled a 19-year-old Protestant walking with his father in a park in the town of Portadown. An hour later, five masked gunmen believed to be Protestant executioners broke into a home in Belfast and murdered a 16-year-old Catholic. And the body of a hooded man, shot in the head, was found in Belfast, apparently another victim of the assassins who have terrorized the city for weeks.

Meanwhile, the British government ordered 32,000 troops, police and militiamen into the streets of 18 cities and towns to keep the warring religious factions apart today while 100,000 Protestants of the Orange Order paraded.

Amid politicians' warnings that Northern Ireland is closer to civil war than at any time in the three years of communal violence, the militant Protestants of the Ulster Defense Association said their armed units would protect the marchers from attack by the Catholics of the Irish Republican Army.

Trouble was feared in Portadown, a town of 13,000 population 25 miles southwest of Belfast. The route of the parade there ran through a Catholic section, and the IRA said it would not allow the marchers through. The UDA said it was prepared for a showdown.

The buildup to the parade was ominous. The Provisional wing of the IRA on Sunday night called off a truce it had ordered two weeks before, and the shooting and bombing since has been worse than ever.

General Testifies on Lod Figure

A Quick Suicide His Aim

TEL AVIV (UPI)—An army general testified today that Kozo Okamoto wanted to commit suicide "in the shortest possible time" after his self-admitted participation in the Lod airport massacre.

Maj. Gen. Rehavam Ze'evi was recalled to the military court trying Okamoto for his life to present his contract with the young Japanese, exchanging information for a means to commit suicide.

He gave the document to the court, first extracting a razor blade from his wallet to cut the name of a signatory from the contract. It was signed early May 31, about eight hours after the assault that killed 26 persons and wounded 79 others.

"It might be harmful to the state to publicize the name of the third name designated to keep this document," said Ze'evi, chief of the central command that includes the Lod area. Ze'evi and Okamoto signed the contract, but the 24-year-old Osakan signed it "Daisuke Namba."

Under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Max Krizman, Ze'evi said no time limit was attached to the agreement.

"Both parties to this agreement realized that it was for a few hours. The demand for an immediate implementation hung in the room all the time. I will not exaggerate if I say that he (Okamoto) was thinking in terms of minutes. He wanted to commit suicide in the shortest possible time," the general said.

Okamoto, surviving member of the three-man Japanese death squad, has admitted in court his role in the attack.

Under cross-examination, in testimony Tuesday, Ze'evi said that Okamoto reneged on the agreement.

"I warned him that if he didn't tell the truth I would leave," Ze'evi said. "I made a unilateral decision that our agreement was null and void and since he wasn't telling the truth he wouldn't get the pistol from me. He tried to convince me but I didn't heed his plea and just left the room without coming back."

Ze'evi said Okamoto didn't fully cooperate and even lied to his interrogators. "He told us his name was Mr. Namba of Japan."

The police officer who obtained the written confession on June 6 said Okamoto did not bring up any preconditions when he signed the document.

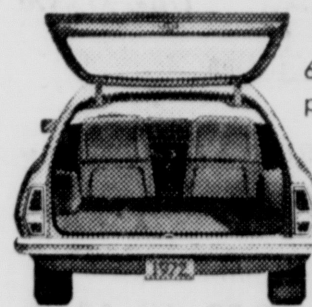

Commander Menashe Golan, head of the special branch of the Tel Aviv police force, told the court, "I heard of no agreement with anybody, written or verbal. There were no conditions" for signing the confession.

Later, the three-man bench deliberated for 90 minutes and then denied a defense motion for a psychiatric examination of Okamoto.

U.S. Back To Paris For Talks

PARIS (UPI)—The United States returns to the Vietnam peace conference Thursday after a 10-week suspension guardedly hopeful the way is finally clear for negotiations on the central issue—the political future of South Vietnam.

President Nixon broke off the 3½-year-old talks after the May 4 session on the grounds North Vietnam and the Viet Cong showed no signs of willingness to negotiate in public or in private on the peace issues.

The Communists' public negotiating demands did not change since then. But U.S. agreement to return to the negotiating table signaled it believed there was now some prospect for real exchanges.

President Nixon's foreign affairs advisor, Henry A. Kissinger, said, however, there was no way of knowing until Hanoi and the Viet Cong sit down once more with the United States and South Vietnam.

Kissinger hinted — hints backed up by statements by Chinese Prime Minister Chou En-lai—that Hanoi and the Viet Cong may have been persuaded to explore the political future of South Vietnam directly with the Saigon government.

Although Saigon is at the conference, the Communist delegations have always insisted on trying to deal directly with the United States on both political and military issues.

At Thursday's session—the 150th—the United States was also expected to formally present President Nixon's May 8 peace plan, announced after he broke off the talks.

This offered a U.S. military withdrawal from South Vietnam within four months if the Communists accept an internationally supervised cease-fire and return the U.S. prisoners of war.

The Communists have demanded the United States announce a final withdrawal date for U.S. troops and the overthrow of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu as the "key points" to be accepted before they will discuss other peace issues.

The United States has so far refused on both counts, as well as the linked Communist demand that Thieu be replaced by a coalition to prepare elections.

South Vietnam has offered Thieu's resignation one month before general elections in which Viet Cong-backed candidates could run, provided the Communists accept a cease-fire.

Some observers also saw possibly hopeful signs that the Communists have repeatedly called for the United States to return to the conference—despite the record bombing levels of North Vietnam and the blockade of her ports.

They demand the bombing be stopped and the blockade lifted. But it was a sharp contrast to 1968 when they came to negotiating table only on condition then President Lyndon B. Johnson halt the earlier bombing.

Vatican Try On POWs Is Failure

ROME (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today a Vatican attempt to arrange an exchange of prisoners of war in Vietnam has failed.

"They (the Vatican) made several attempts, directly and indirectly, to see if there is some way prisoners could be exchanged," Rogers said. "So far, (it has been) to no avail." He did not elaborate on what steps had been taken.

When he saw Pope Paul VI 13 months ago, Rogers asked him to intervene to improve the condition of U.S. prisoners of war in Vietnam and see if there was any chance of gaining their freedom.

The secretary saw the Pope for an hour today and heard the Vatican report.

Earlier, the secretary conferred for more than two hours with Italian leaders in the first official contact between the Nixon administration and the 15-day-old coalition government led by Premier Giulio Andreotti.

Rogers, who originally was scheduled to fly home from Yugoslavia Sunday after a 10-day swing through Asia, the Mediterranean and East European nations, decided at the last moment to add Rome to his itinerary, extending the trip by two days.

"I think there is reason for hope," Rogers said when asked about the prospects at the Paris peace talks resuming Thursday.

He called a recent North Vietnamese offensive a failure and described the decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors and step up bombing by U.S. warplanes "unusually effective."

Rogers did not elaborate on the Vatican's efforts to bring about an exchange of prisoners. Nor did the Vatican, where sources said such diplomatic activity was usually kept secret.

Lowest in 11 Years

Serious U.S. Crime...Slight Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Serious crime in the nation during the first three months of this year rose only 1 per cent, the lowest increase in 11 years, the Justice Department announced today.

The rate of increase was 6 per cent a year ago, and 13 per cent in 1970.

Atty. Gen. Richard G.

Kleindienst, in releasing the figures from the FBI's Uniform Crime Report for the months January through March, also said that 80 of the nation's largest cities reported reductions in serious crime in the first three months of 1972.

In 1971, 59 cities showed a decrease, while only 22 had a decline in 1970, he said.

The most significant change in the three months, said Kleindienst, occurred in the six cities with more than a million population.

In the first quarter of this year, the number of serious crimes in those cities rose 6 per cent, one half of the 1971 increase of 12 per cent.

The nationwide crime statistics are compiled by voluntary reports from 6,068 local, county and state law enforcement agencies.

The report divides serious crime into two categories—violent, which includes murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault, and property, which includes burglary, larceny $50 and over and auto theft.

Violent crime, which makes up about 13 per cent of the total index offenses in the crime report, increased 2 per cent in the first quarter of 1972, compared to a 13 per cent increase during the same period in 1971.

In the categories that make up violent crime, murder was up 2 per cent compared to 1971's rise of 11 per cent; forcible rape up 17 per cent versus 2 per cent last year, robbery down 2 per cent, while in the first quarter of 1971 it was up 17 per cent. Aggravated assaults rose 5 per cent compared to a 7 per cent increase in the first three months of 1971.

Suburban police agencies reported a 4 per cent increase in serious crime which was slightly lower than the 5 per cent last year and substantially lower than the 18 per cent rise in 1970.

Crime in rural areas increased 8 per cent in the first quarter, compared to a 6 per cent increase in 1971 and a 19 per cent increase in 1970.

Welfare Dispute to Rocky

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was confronted today with a request to settle a dispute over the rate of ineligible recipients in New York City's welfare system.

City welfare officials say no more than three per cent of the 1.1 million recipients are ineligible for payments, but welfare Inspector-General George Berlinger says the figure may range up to 37 per cent.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt says the true figure probably is around 10 per cent and wants Rockefeller to appoint a task force to find out.

"The rate of ineligibility remains a serious question, with conflicting estimates," he said in a letter to the governor released Tuesday. "This unresolved question has contributed to a serious lack of public confidence."

If the 10 per cent figure were correct, he said, it would mean the wrongful payments of $90 million over the year.

Levitt suggested that the task force be comprised of representatives of the state comptroller's office, the city comptroller's office, the state Social Services Department, the city Social Services Department, the welfare inspector general's office and "one or two outside experts."

"What is needed, as far as the rate of ineligibility is concerned, is a team effort by all interested agencies to arrive at a credible estimate, together with relevant recommendations," Levitt said.

In an accompanying 38-page audit, Levitt had harsh words for the city system of checking ineligible recipients. The city replied that most of the conditions have been corrected since the time the operation was studied.

Several cases that were studied for eligibility were classified as "indeterminate," meaning that final determination was precluded, Levitt said. He suggested that the city clear up these cases, require employees to work harder on them and improve other review procedures.

Levitt said his auditors turned up cases where applicants were granted welfare benefits even though they failed to apply for a job as required or did not seek drug treatment or had too much income or refused to enroll in job training programs.

State auditors made an independent review of 306 cases and identified 23 ineligible cases. Levitt said, plus six cases that were questionable and five cases with possible over-

Fischer . . . Straight Into a Russian Trap

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — Caught in a hopelessly drawn game, temperamental American challenger Bobby Fischer took a chance to bring some life into his first world chess championship game.

In that moment, soft-spoken and mild-mannered Boris Spassky proved why he is the world champion in the noblest of games.

He immediately pounced on Fischer's bishop—left trapped after capturing one of the Russian's pawns—and the game turned distinctly in Spassky's favor.

Spassky asked for adjournment after 40 moves and 4½ hours play.

When the two resume the game — the first in their $250,000, 24-game world match — Spassky has a bishop and three pawns against Fischer's five pawns. Play resumes later today.

Most experts assembled here seemed to agree that Spassky has a chance to win, while Fischer should be happy if he salvages a draw.

But nobody has come up with an explanation why the American chess genius went straight into what appeared to be a Russian trap.

"He took a chance to win a chance," said Danish grandmaster Jens Enevoldsen.

"We will never know until Fischer tells us—if he does," said another international grandmaster.

Fischer obviously was displeased with his game. After the adjournment he angrily demanded a meeting with the Icelandic organizers to complain against what he described as the noisy audience. Some 3,000 Icelanders and foreign chess enthusiasts had packed into the Lagardur Hall for the opening thriller. But most knowledgeable observers said they felt the audience was more quiet than is normal at top chess games.

The Icelanders rejected Fischer's demand and told him it is up to the official referee, Lothar Schmid of West Germany, to run the game from now on.

Spassky's seconds, including international grand masters Efrem Geller and Nikolai Krogus, sent their world champion to sleep and then spent the night and the morning hours analyzing the position to find a winning combination for Spassky.

Many experts feel they will succeed, even if Geller himself modestly suggested: "I believe we will have a draw."

Eye-Gougers... Reward

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Two newspapers have joined with police in an effort to locate the bandits responsible for two eye-gouging incidents last weekend.

A $2,500 reward is offered by the Gannett newspapers in Rochester for information leading to the conviction of the men who attacked an elderly grocer and a young service station atendant in separate holdups. "We've got 10 detectives working around the clock on this case," a spokesman for the detective bureau said Tuesday.

"But so far our information is very slight." Meanwhile, the two victims remained hospitalized, one of them in a coma.

Samuel C. Schafer, 72, was the first to suffer a gouging.

Police said a bandit entered Schafer's grocery store early Sunday, robbed him of $21 and then choked him and attacked his eyes.

Schafer told a reporter he lost consciousness when grabbed around the throat. "I don't know who got me in the eyes," he said.

Sitting in a hospital room, the blind man said he was anxious to go home. He was expected to be released later in the week.

The second eye-gouging occurred before dawn Monday, when Robert Paro, 19, was assaulted at the gas station where he worked.

Police said two men staged that hold-up, taking about $10. They said they were "quite sure" one of the men was involved in the earlier robbery.

Paro lay unconscious at St. Mary's Hospital and could not be questioned by police. A surgical attempt to save the sight in his left eye had to be postponed Tuesday.

His condition was described as poor.

Detectives said they had little concrete information about the robberies but speculated they might be the work of addicts in need of cash.

Persons having any knowledge of the incidents were asked to contact the police or the Gannett papers, where anonymity was promised.

Those Payroll Fines.... CSEA Ponders Court

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — While the state prepares to collect payroll fines from some 7,000 public employees it says struck over the Easter weekend, the Civil Service Employees Association (CSEA) is thinking about taking the matter to court.

"There may be court action over this," said a spokesman for the union, which won a four per cent pay raise in the 40-hour strike.

"We've been studying this case of the state imposing the penalties—we're committed to take every legal step possible to oppose or to fight the levying of these penalties."

The fines are to be deducted from the so-called institutional payroll on July 19 and from the administrative payroll July 26, a spokesman for the state Office of Employee Relations said Tuesday.

The penalties amount to two days' pay for each day the employee was on strike, but the amount an employee may have been docked for being absent on a strike day counts toward the total penalty, the state spokesman said.

For example, if an employee earned $20 a day and were on strike for one day, his penalty would be $40. If he had already been docked the day's pay of $20 for being absent, the balance of the penalty is $20.

Jack Anderson Says

Donkey-Elephant Amnity

MIAMI BEACH—While the two parties bristle and brawl for the presidential campaign, they are cooperating secretly to make America's political processes work.

The Democrats, for example, quietly intervened to bring the homeless Republicans to Miami Beach when San Diego fell through as the GOP convention site.

The Republicans, in return, have scoured the countryside for office trailers at a rental rate the bankrupt Democrats can afford. On the QT, the Republicans have even helped the Democrats get ads for their convention program.

Their unusual cooperation springs from an amazing friendship between two political arch-rivals. They are GOP Vice Chairman Dick Herman, a conservative Omaha trucker, and financier Robert Strauss, the down-to-earth Democratic treasurer.

They have been conferring closely since February when they cautiously came together at Ford Motors headquarters in Washington to discuss corporate ads in the convention programs.

At first, the two men circled each other like jungle cats, but gradually they relaxed. Then, suddenly, the impulsive Herman turned to their Ford hosts.

"Say, have you got a private office we could borrow for a moment?" While the motor men blinked, the two political rivals ducked into a private conference room and shut the door.

"Let's quit messing around. Bob," said Herman, "Let's get together and do it."

"Fine," said Strauss. "That's fine with me."

Strauss thrust out his hand, and the two men shook.

Strange Allies

Their first accomplishment was a joint telegram from Democratic chairman Larry O'Brien and Republican chairman Bob Dole soliciting funds for the convention programs.

The pair also brought together a dozen Democratic and Republican ad men for a secret lunch meeting at Washington's huge Hilton hotel. Over melon cup and baked chicken, the Democrats and Republicans compared notes. To the astonishment of all, the GOP representatives found themselves eagerly suggesting ways for the Democrats to meet their staggering convention deficits.

Herman and Strauss afterward put their staffs to work listing corporations to hit up for ads. Some outraged GOP hardliners thought the use of traditional GOP contributors by the Democrats was going too far. But the GOP's Bob Dole brushed aside their objections and the secret collaboration went on.

The cooperation paid off for the Republicans a few weeks later when the arrangements to hold their convention in San Diego began to sour. Strauss immediately phoned his GOP friend.

"Do you have any interest in Miami Beach?" Strauss asked.

"I don't think so," said Herman uncertainly, "but don't count it out."

"Well, you've got my standing offer to help," Strauss assured him.

After a mid-April meeting with San Diego representatives, Herman decided that problems with labor and the facilities made San Diego impossible as a convention site. The ITT subsidy offer also had tainted the San Diego site.

At seven o'clock the next morning, Herman and his top aide, Jim Gale, were on the way to Miami Beach to meet with Mayor Chuck Hall whose elderly constituents were already less than enthusiastic about the Democratic convention, fearing a repetition of the 1968-style violence. The last thing they wanted was another political convention.

Worried by Hall's reaction, Herman hastily called Strauss in Dallas where the financier was golfing.

"You can play things like golf," said Herman with mock rue. "You've got a home."

Herman explained this predicament, adding that he had his eye on Miami Beach.

Strauss replied slyly: "We may have a home, but we don't have any money to pay for it. Let's get together and do some planning."

Strauss was as good as his word. He contacted his friend, Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, who promised to offer Miami Beach police and other support for the Republicans.

With Askew and Strauss behind him, Herman made a crucial presentation to 75 state and city leaders in Miami Beach. The Floridians balked but finally gave the go-ahead on May 3.

Three weeks later, Strauss and Herman brought together 40 staff members to coordinate such problems as transportation, rooms, seats, office trailers, TV facilities and the like. After the meeting, as the eyes of old party hacks popped, the Democrats and Republicans threw each other a cocktail party in the hotel's GiGi room.

Herman and Strauss, meanwhile, have been secretly swapping information on what corporations are taking out program ads.

At one point, Strauss, genuinely touched by how they had been able to disagree about politics while they remained friends, told Herman: "The Lord works in strange and pleasing ways."

The planning is now over, but Herman and Strauss are determined that their lesson in amity will not be forgotten. The two are proposing a bipartisan commission to study how cooperation can continue in the future to hold down the bankrupting costs of party conventions.

"It Wasn't a Sporty Model, But It Always Got Us There!"

David Lawrence Says

Dem Friction

Party conventions occur every four years and yet preparations to write a platform and line up delegates present a picture of confusion as the sessions start.

This year an incumbent president will be renominated by the Republicans, but the would-be nominees of the Democrats have for the last several months engaged in primaries in 23 states. The aspirants for the party's nomination have made many speeches. It is doubtful, however, whether the country has any clear idea of how the individual candidates differ from one another or what each really stands for.

As has happened in the past, there has been disarray over the seating of delegates. A controversy exists about the allocation of delegates to various candidates on the basis of the proportion of the vote each actually received in a primary. Under an artificial rule a would-be nominee who got more votes than another is being awarded the whole state delegation on what is known as a "winner take all" rule. Under this device, the public can hardly feel that the numerical result of a primary has been properly apportioned according to the wishes of the voters.

But the theory seems to be to satisfy certain organizers in a political convention and to make it possible for a front-runner to gain delegates. Someone who was less fortunate in the contest doesn't get a chance for a recording that shows exactly what support was given him when the roll call is made. These methods have long been a part of party politics and have been designed to give an advantage to the leaders who work for a big share of the votes in the primaries and feel they should obtain the rest of the ballots cast by a state delegation.

All this appears to run counter to the concept that a convention operates like an election, when the candidate on the ticket gets the votes that are cast in his favor and nobody is able to give him anything which he has not obtained at the polls. Someday the procedures will be changed and state primaries will be conducted by strict rules which will require that the primaries be dealt with on a basis identical to what the citizens themselves recorded when they cast their votes in the primary election.

Delegates to national conventions should have the right, after at least two ballots, to change their support to another candidate. These are rules which the credentials committees should have worked out in party meetings long before conventions are scheduled to open and submitted to party members for approval. Conventions then could really become a part of the election process and win the respect of the voters.

There have been conventions in which long deadlines have occurred. Sometimes leading candidates have had to give way to a compromise nominee—someone who has not even participated in the primaries. But such selections in case of deadlines should be provided for in the convention rules. So the action would conform to the wishes of the delegates, as they represent the voters in their districts and have been chosen in the primaries in their respective states.

There has been talk of a deadlock this year at the Democratic convention, but Senator George McGovern will have such a large number of delegates for the first ballot that it will be a great surprise if he is unable to maintain his strength and draw support from the opposition sufficient to win him the nomination.

What is far more important for the future of the Democratic party is what its fate will be in the November election. For there are groups which are shifting around and no one can tell where their support will finally go on election day. Senator McGovern has run into disfavor among some groups in the party, and there are rumors that even union labor is not too happy with certain proposals coming from the McGovern camp. Governor Wallace of Alabama has a substantial following, and it seems likely that many of them may cross over to the Republican side. Politicians who have gone through lots of campaigns are very much puzzled as to what the current disunity in the Democratic ranks means for the months ahead.

Before this convention is over, the American people may get an idea from the speeches of the aspirants for the nomination of what they themselves stand for, but the friction that is evident among the various factions indicates that unity may not be accomplished at Miami Beach.

Freeman Editorials

McGovern Needs Help

If he's nominated, Senator George McGovern will need help, lots of help, the experts are convinced. Richard Scammon, an authority on American voting, has been widely quoted for telling a group of reporters at breakfast recently that he sees "a disaster of the order of Goldwater" as a distinct possibility for the Democrats with McGovern as their nominee.

At the same time, Scammon told his hearers, "We can't forget that there are about twice as many registered Democrats in this country, so Senator McGovern might be able to pull it off somehow." To "pull it off," Scammon felt McGovern needs help, plenty of help, even with a two to one advantage in party registration.

First of all, McGovern needs Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts as a running mate to "help him with the Roman Catholic vote." If convinced that the election is lost, without him on the ticket, Scammon thinks Kennedy can be persuaded despite his many disclaimers this year.

George C. Wallace as a third party candidate would help McGovern, Scammon thinks, by cutting deeply into the Nixon vote cross the country. But he does not think a Wallace third party try is at all likely this year, not only because of his physical condition as a result of the assassination attempt, but because of more fundamental political factors.

According to Scammon, Wallace, like Kennedy, is looking to 1976. Both see their opportunity four years hence. Both are preparing the ground for a make or break effort then. Denied the nomination now, Wallace will protect his credentials as a national Democrat for 1976. Kennedy would not want further to besmirch his opportunity for the top place next time, should McGovern fail, even with his help.

On the issues, McGovern needs a disastrous slip in the economy, that would be readily felt by the housewife and the worker, to make them forget his "wild" proposals. He would need a return of the labor vote, which as of now prefers Nixon, especially on national defense. And he is circumscribed by his own economic program. It would raise a question of credibility, should he modify his views too widely.

Maybe McGovern's hordes of bell-ringers can change all that. They are his best bet in the big election, to make a try for the sweep he made of the primaries. It won't be easy.

Changing the FDA Image

Increasingly attacked as being too industry oriented, the Food and Drug Administration's efforts to polish up its consumer watchdog image is beginning to win it friends and allies.

For instance, an irate Minneapolis mother complained she had found contaminated popcorn while preparing a special treat for her daughter and friends. FDA promptly investigated and destroyed $200 worth of insect-infested popcorn.

Expanding their investigation, the FDA inspectors found a cookie firm, a nut processor, a pickle canner, and two warehouses operating under "extremely poor sanitary conditions." The nut processor and pickle canner suspended operations for several days to clean equipment. More than seven tons of contaminated foods were destroyed.

Another example is the use by FDA of mobile laboratories which roll up to the docks to step up inspection of imported foods. Also, there is a new move toward nutritional labeling of foods—although still on a voluntary basis. Finally, with a newly announced "open files" policy, FDA is moving to counter the criticism that its policy of secrecy, when poor sanitation is found, serves industry, not the consumer.

Consumers are getting action when they complain to the FDA about food safety, labeling, adulteration, misbranding and other areas of concern. If FDA doesn't get results, a complaint to the Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, the White House, Washington, D. C. 20501 should. Consumers are getting attention. This is an election year, remember? Make the most of it.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Unconventional Cynicism

This typewriter is about 45 minutes by oxcart from the Democratic National Convention but I will not attend. This applies to the Republican National Convention, too. The fault is mine. I have attended too many of them and I can't imagine anything more dolorous than a third seconding speech for the nomination of Wilbur Mills.

Nor the reading of a party platform which is never strong enough for a nominee to stand on and not weak enough for him to fall to his death. In time, the reporter becomes more cynical than the delegates, and that is cynical indeed. The sweaty delegates who grab a microphone hollering hoarsely, "Mrs. Chairman, Mr. Chairman. A point of order," seldom have a point of order.

They coin clunky clichés like: "From the rockbound coast of Maine to the sunny shores of California."

Most of the experts, who believe that a party which pundits spend time explaining what they think is going to happen because there is so little inspiration in what is happening.

My father led me by the hand to Madison Square Garden in 1924 to watch the first one. Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo forced the Democrats to 102 ballots in a dead heat. At each roll call, the chairman of the Alabama delegation opened with: "The sovereign state of Alabama casts 24 votes for Underwood."

He was a Senator. The Wyoming delegation thought he was a typewriter. On the 103rd ballot, the Democrats, after much cogitation, came up with a compromise nominee who couldn't possibly win: John W. Davis of Wall Street. The Republican, Calvin Coolidge, knocked him over, 15,725,000 votes to 8,386,000. The Midwest Progressive party nominee, Robert La Follette, drew 4,822,000.

Most of the experts, who believe that a party which purges itself in public will lose in November, should restudy the Democratic Convention of 1932 in Chicago. Al Smith fought for one more try at the Presidency. His protégé, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, broke the party wide open in a battle to kill his mentor.

Matters got so out of hand that Smith's floor manager, Frank Hague of Jersey City, stooped to a new low when he stated: "If you cannot nominate Smith, for God's sake don't nominate a cripple." The cripple won, fought a great Depression and a great war. He was elected to four terms and Bob Hope said: "I always voted for Roosevelt. So did my father."

When Roosevelt ran for a fourth term against Thomas E. Dewey, FDR resorted to an unfair subterfuge. The nation was in the final year of a great war, and he ran, not as President, but as "Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces." Dewey and his manager, Herbert Brownell, found the title so hard to beat that they wore themselves out referring to FDR and his Cabinet as "Those tired old men in Washington."

Nothing is as it seems. The Republican party blamed their own man, Herbert Hoover, for the Great Depression. Richard E. Berlin, his friend, arranged for me to meet Hoover when he was 85. The Iowa engineer was no more responsible for the Depression than a Chinese kid who sneezes is responsible for Asian flu sweeping the world.

The G.O.P. refused to invite Hoover to conventions or party councils between 1932 and 1956. Then, as I sat in the Cow Palace in California, I heard the strains of "Hail to the Chief" and out of a cadre of Secret Service men, the plump smile of Hoover emerged—forgiven at last.

The delegates whooped and hollered. Then they nominated Dwight D. Eisenhower, victim of a heart attack. In the 1960 election, John Kennedy drew 31,227,000 votes; Richard Nixon got 34,108,000. Tight? One became President of the United States; the other became unemployed.

Something is wrong with the system, or something is wrong with me. I can appreciate naked greed; I just can't tolerate it when it is wrapped in patriotism and the American flag. Nor can I feel anyway but sick to know that state delegations must now have a representative number of women, blacks and youth. Obviously, this gives an unfair advantage to minorities.

I would prefer that all who wish to be delegates to a national convention stand for election—not as women, or men, or black of whites—but as persons qualified to scheme, to plot, and to lie in favor of the spoils system.

Of one thing you children may be certain. The Republican convention is going to be so orderly that if, away back in Westchester County, N.Y., Martha Mitchell coughs, she may stampede the delegations into a wild parade . . .

New President on Paltz Scene Looking Forward to 'Challenge'

By JON POWERS

NEW PALTZ Dr. Stanley K. Coffman Jr., newly appointed president of the State University College at New Paltz, is well aware that the handful of campus "extremists" that attended Bowling Green University in Ohio would hardly stir a ripple at politically active New Paltz.

But if the 55-year-old scholar and administrator is at all apprehensive about the impending change in "climate," he doesn't show it. In fact, he relishes the challenge.

Dr. Coffman served for ten years in various academic and administrative posts at the staunchly conservative mid-Western university before accepting the job as head of the College at New Paltz.

He comes to New Paltz with some firm ideas about the directions education is destined to follow in future years; he is firm, too, in his feelings on the interrelation of academics and politics.

Dr. Coffman admits that there is a place for political activity and involvement on the college campus; he doesn't necessarily adhere to the philosophy that education and politics are inseparable, or that the university should serve as a base for political activity.

"I don't think the institution should be used for any purposes other than education," said Dr. Coffman.

He didn't detail to what extent future activism at New Paltz would be tolerated, although he emphasized that he is "not interested in wielding power."

He indicated that it is his intention to communicate with all segments of the college community. "I realize that New Paltz is a politically active college," he commented. "I'm sure the students will make their feelings known." He added, "But I don't think that 'wielding power' is as important as how you get along with the people."

The participation of the "people" in Dr. Coffman's selection as the new president at New Paltz played an important role in his decision to leave Bowling Green. He was admittedly impressed with the selection procedure that was carried out equally by students, faculty, administrators, staff members and the College Council.

"If it had been done any other way, I wouldn't have been interested," he said. "If Larry (Quilty) (chairman of the College Council), had come up to me and said, simply, 'The job is yours, I wouldn't have accepted.'"

Because his selection apparently represented a mandate of the college community at New Paltz, Dr. Coffman said "It gives me a good start." But, he added, "I have a lot to prove on my own."

Throughout an interview this week with The Freeman, Dr. Coffman de-emphasized the very apparent dichotomy between conservative Bowling Green and liberal New Paltz, and instead stressed the purely educational challenges he will face as college administrator.

A major reason for his move from Bowling Green to New Paltz, Dr. Coffman indicated, was the absence of a dominant graduate program at the area college. "The undergraduate phase of education is much more important than the graduate phase," said Dr. Coffman. "I think that often graduate programs have an unfortunate effect on the undergraduate area."

Significantly, Bowling Green University placed heavy emphasis on its doctoral program; New Paltz doesn't offer any graduate degrees above the Master's level. In Dr. Coffman's mind, New Paltz is, as a result, already ahead of the game.

He explained why he felt undergraduate work should be emphasized.

"Most obvious," he said, "is that there are more undergraduates than graduate students. All kinds of questions are being asked about the direction of undergraduate education; new ideas are being tried; it's where things are happening now. They haven't yet started to argue about graduate education." He indicated also that graduate programs often tend to dilute the efforts that are still being made to improve the quality and structure of undergraduate education.

The reputation of the State University of New York (SUNY) system also attracted Dr. Coffman to New Paltz. "I've admired the SUNY system for a long time," he stated. "New York's system of supporting its public colleges appears much more sensible than the way things are done in Ohio."

Dr. Coffman arrived in New Paltz Monday night; he'll return to Bowling Green tonight before taking up permanent residence in New Paltz in September. His schedule this week included a tour of the campus . . . on his own terms. "When I was here for the interview, they showed me what they showed me what they wanted me to see," said Dr. Coffman. "Now I want to look over the things I want." He added, "I'm frankly impressed with the physical plant at New Paltz. It's much larger than I originally thought."

He is impressed, too, with the programs, both present and future, at the New Paltz College. "I'm especially interested in professional and career-oriented programs," he noted. "It's something that four-year colleges will have to accept, and it's something I think the students definitely want." Aside from that general appraisal of his plans for the future direction of New Paltz, he declined to list specific programs he has in mind for the school.

Dr. Coffman will succeed Dr. John J. Neumaier, who guided New Paltz during four sometimes tumultuous years; a period that nevertheless saw the local college emerge as one of the most respected — among academic circles — of New York's state colleges.

Dietz Vandalism

Editor, The Freeman:

In your recent editorial concerning the commencement speech by the President of the senior class of Kingston High School, you refer to the reaction of the graduates and guests as condoning the vandalism of painting Dietz Stadium.

In fact, this young man took The Daily Freeman, the Department of Recreation and the City Administration to task for only reporting on the bad things that are done by our young people but rarely report on the many worthwhile activities of this group. He merely stated that in the Fall of 1971 the senior class made the offer to paint the stadium if the paint were supplied. After much delay, they were informed that there wasn't $100 available for paint and after the vandalism it cost much more.

I believe that all our media are guilty of seeking headlines rather than searching for facts. A police blotter report or hearsay evidence of a speech is not sufficient research to condemn a group of thousands. If you had heard his speech, you would have known that he really said was — to all give us credit for our accomplishments, even if they don't make headlines.

Those guilty of the vandalism should be punished. If the rule of law does not prevail then our country will not survive! I believe that you owe this young man an apology as well as the graduates and commencement guests for your ill-advised editorial.

Very truly yours,

Arnold Case

Editor, The Freeman:

WELCOME TO FRIENDLY SAUGERTIES, the community where a man is judged guilty until he proves himself innocent — if he is a school superintendent.

In this fine Christian town, on the day following the Glorious 4th, only one man could be found willing to risk the scorn of the multitude to point out the injustice of the manner in which Dr. Arnold was dismissed.

It matters not whether charges are ultimately revealed to substantiate his firing. What should be concerning some consciences is that no concerted outcry is at present raised against his conviction by innuendo.

Can it be that moral sterility

The Copperheads

Editor, The Freeman:

Your front page picture in the June 29 edition of the four brave heroes holding up the kill was a little difficult to take. Your so-called, "Highly poisonous copperhead", looks a great deal more like a highly beneficial Black Rat snake. Assuming your identification was accurate, this by no means gives you free license to condone, no, what's worse, glamorize the slaughter of a helpless creature. Why is it that the poor snake always bears the brunt of human ignorance?

You should be advised that the copperhead is a peaceful animal that preys mainly on rodents and will only attack a human if all other means of escape have been exhausted. The bite of a copperhead is rarely fatal, only infants and sick individuals are in danger.

I personally think that irresponsible journalism is far more injurious, when you consider that every child who saw that picture will be killing any and every snake they can get their hands on, in the hopes that they too can become a celebrity. When the snakes in Ulster County have all been killed and the rat population has grown out of control, we will all know who to thank.

Thank you in advance,

$50 Taken From Home

KINGSTON

A burglary at the home of Joseph Ricci at 14 Tietjen Avenue, this city, was reported to police Tuesday.

According to detectives an unidentified person entered the house through an unlocked rear door and allegedly took a wallet containing $50. Police said a member of the family was outside on a lawn and another was in the residence when the alleged entry was made.

Armaments and War

Editor, The Freeman:

There is a widespread misconception that armaments cause wars, and that by reducing them, peace will be assured. If all the armaments now in the arsenals of the nations were to be scrapped it would not end war. Nations would go on fighting with spears and knives as they did before we had all the sophisticated weapons we have now. It is the fear of war which causes armaments, not armaments which cause war.

There are even some who advocate unilateral disarmament. They say that if the United States will disarm it will serve as an example for others to follow suit. That would be the surest way to national suicide.

Wars could be eliminated if nations would abandon their ambition to acquire and dominate nations. The United States has no such ambition. It entered three wars in this century without seeking or acquiring a foot of any country's territory. When the wars were over, it helped the nations it had defeated to get back on their feet. No nation in the history of the world has poured out so much in blood and treasure to prevent any one nation from imposing its will on the rest of the world.

On the other hand, the communists have managed in the course of about a half century to acquire dominion over one-third of the world's population and one-fourth of the world's land surface. They say that they intend to take over countries by what they call "wars of national liberation."

While the communists adhere to this position, we, the United States must remain prepared. Our military establishment must be capable of defeating them. The kind of weapons must be as good, or better, than those employed by the communists. Failure to do so can only tempt them to embark on adventures which could lead to war.

Get Rid Of Mummy

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (UPD) — In 1939, J. Franklin Clute loaned a 3,600-year-old Egyptian mummy to the Schenectady Museum.

Now, museum director George H. Cole wants to get rid of the mummy, named Tothmea, because she is so tattered that "she is a rather disgusting mummy," Cole said Tuesday.

The problem is that Clute has not been heard from since 1939, and Cole doubts that any other museum would be willing to take the mummy because of its bedraggled condition.

MOON MONKEYSHINES — Apollo 15 astronauts (L-R) David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden were reprimanded by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Tuesday for carrying 400 unauthorized and signed envelopes to the moon in a plan to sell 100 of them to establish a trust fund for their families. The astronauts authorized to take 232 envelopes on their July, 1971 mission, took an additional 400. (UPI)

$126,400 Grant for Phase II

KINGSTON today announced a $126,400 grant for construction of Phase II of the Rondout Neighborhood Center on Lower Broadway.

Announcement of the HUD grant represents formal federal approval of the project.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig was informed of the grant today. Koenig had made formal application for the funds on April 24.

The money will help cover construction of a second floor gymnasium over the existing structure. Locker rooms, closets and storage space will also be included.

Mayor Koenig estimates that the entire project will cost $189,600. The city will be required to pay the remaining $63,200.

Actual specifications for the work, however, have not yet been drawn up. Koenig said today that he will meet "shortly" with HUD officials to determine the next step in the project.

Once an architect is hired to draw up plans for the addition, the job will be put out to bid.

Construction of the second story will be added to the existing structure. The building was originally divided into two phases because federal funds were not available earlier for construction of the gymnasium.

Phase I of the project was completed at a cost of $290,000, with the federal government providing $192,000 of that amount.

It appeared earlier this year, however, that the city would miss the opportunity to receive federal funds for the second phase. The city was required to formally apply for the money by March 31, but Koenig was able to receive an extension of the deadline.

If the Phase II bids come at estimates, the entire building will carry a final price tag of $479,000.

Koenig would not project when bids would be advertised, or when construction might begin.

The Rondout Neighborhood Center was dedicated in February, culminating six years of planning and construction. The present structure includes a day care center, activities rooms and senior citizen meeting rooms.

and was designed so that a second story could be added containing the gymnasium. Construction of the building was originally divided into two phases because federal funds were not available earlier for construction of the gymnasium.

THREE CAMPAIGNERS — Heads of the three sections of the Industrial Division of the United Way Campaign for 1973 go over plans for the drive, which gets under way Sept. 13. They are Bruce Link, executive director of the Association for Retarded Children, Wilbur Peters, division manager for the Upper Hudson Division of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company and James Dwyer, president of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America. The Industrial Division's principal task is to obtain pledges for payroll deductions from industrial employees. (Freeman photo by Powell)

3 Named to Head Industrial Group

KINGSTON The principal task of the Industrial Division will be to obtain pledges for payroll deductions, Brocco said.

Local employers have been extremely cooperative in the past in urging employees to contribute on a weekly, monthly, or quarterly basis," Brocco said. "Contributions through payroll deduction have proven to be the most convenient and most accepted way of giving by employees."

Brocco called the involvement of personnel of the Boy Scouts and the Association for Retarded Children an example of the united effort being made by member agencies to guarantee a successful local campaign.

"The continued cooperation and involvement between local industry and the United Way throughout the years has been one of the primary reasons for the success of the United Way in fulfilling the needs of youth, the elderly, the sick and the handicapped in Ulster County," Brocco said.

The 1973 United Way Campaign begins Sept. 13 with over 800 volunteers expected to serve.

Hurley Luncheon

The Hurley Senior Citizens Club will have a covered dish luncheon Thursday, July 13, at 12:30 p.m. Those attending will bring their own place setting. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Antoinette Tennant, President of the Ulster County Senior Citizens Alliance.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened slightly higher in moderate trading today.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 1.36 at 927.23 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 228 to 209, among the 604 issues crossing the tape.

The Dow has slipped more than 16 points in the past three sessions with investors becoming increasingly concerned about Sen. George S. McGovern's economic policies. McGovern has clinched the Democratic Presidential nomination.

U.S. Steel at 29 3/4, Republic at 21 1/4, Armco at 20 1/4 and Jones & Laughlin at 17 1/4 each gained 1/4 in their firm group. Ford rose 3/4 to 63.

Eastman Kodak picked up 1/4 to 134 1/4 in the chemicals. Union Carbide lost 1/4 to 45 1/4.

Tivoli Public Hearing Set on Billing System

A public hearing on the Village of Tivoli's proposed new sewer billing system will be held July 24, it was decided recently by the village Board of Trustees.

The new law, which had originally been scheduled to go into effect July 1, primarily proposes that village residents using the sewerage system will pay for it, and those who do not will not pay.

This was the method in effect in 1939, just after the system had been completed during the depression. For many years, all village residents had been supporting the sewerage system through taxes. The new law will separate the billing and payments into a different department, similar to the water billing setup.

The village is awaiting the use of its newly installed secondary sewerage treatment plant on the Clay Kill, state mandated and largely paid for by the state and federal governments through grants.

In other business, the board decided that a $2,000 repair job on the village building and firehouse roof was preferable to an approximate $5,200 new roof. The DiFalco Roofing Company will perform the task.

July 18 has been declared a general cleanup day, when crews will pickup debris other than regular garbage.

The hooking up of Kingston Cablevision units in Tivoli has been delayed, and Trustee Robert Barrett said he had not received a satisfactory answer as to why the villages of Rhinebeck and Red Hook had received service and Tivoli had not. The company has asked for a one year extension in the contract for service.

Youthful Sleepwalker Found Safe

REDFIELD, N. Y. (UPI)—David Chase, an 11-year-old camper who apparently sleepwalked, was found safe Tuesday after becoming lost overnight near the Salmon River Reservoir and this Oswego County community.

State police said the boy, a resident of Central Square, was camping with Boy Scouts from Troop 7 of West Monroe when he began to sleepwalk. He woke up sometime later in the woods, and, using his Boy Scout training, sat down until daylight.

At daybreak, the boy headed for a clearing and ended up at the reservoir. He told authorities he sat down, pulled out his jackknife, picked up a stick and began whittling, waiting for help to arrive.

Initial search efforts proved ineffective but a state police helicopter spotted the boy at the edge of the lake.

Dog Tattoos May Replace Old License

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Owners of dogs in New York State may be taking their pets for tattooing rather than a license tag if legislation proposed by the Department of Agriculture and Markets is enacted.

This system, the department contends, would work against "dognapping" and make possible the computer processing of dog licensing.

The department also recommends a boost of the licensing fee to $10 and requiring the leashing of all dogs, with a provision allowing localities to declare themselves exempt.

The $10 license fee would be an increase from the present rate of $2.35 for males and $5.35 for females.

Under the tattooing measure, New Yorkers would be required to have identification numbers tattooed on puppies between the ages of four months and six months.

These proposals, drafted after a public opinion survey was conducted, would be considered at public hearings in Buffalo and Albany before being submitted to the legislature, the department said.

The state's present dog law has been in effect since 1929, with some periodic amendments.

Beautification Program Set

RHINEBECK Money will be solicited from Rhinebeck businesses and building owners in the near future to fund the Visual Environment Committee (VEC) plans for a coordinated downtown beautification program.

While the drive has not yet officially begun, some $700 has been collected from Rhinebeck businesses toward that goal, according to Ron Miller, chairman of the Finance Subcommittee.

Miller assumed that post last week following the resignation of Dr. Robert Gross. Subscriptions are reported to be available in both $25 and $100 amounts.

The committee hopes to raise at least $2,500. It approved the hiring of Rhinebeck architect Richard Crowley several months ago to form a coordinated scheme for the four-block area, tentatively to include some building facelighting, some plantings, thematic light fixtures and signing of buildings. Crowley has been taking photographs of the buildings in preparation of this task.

Businesses contributing to the VEC thus far are: Beekman Arms Hotel; Marvin and Frost, attorneys; First National Bank of Rhinebeck; Chet Haen; John Tieder, real estate and insurance; Fred Von Husen; Helen Z. Battistoni, real estate; Robert Gross, Pawling Health Manor.

VEC Chairman Michael Fichera has announced that John Hatch will chair the public relations committee.

Q: We recently traveled through Portugal, which I found charming, but my husband insists it is a dictatorship. If so, how does it compare to Spain? — J.K., St. Louis.

A: Portugal, under the stranglehold of Dictator Salazar for three decades and now under the new Prime Minister Caetano, is quite a repressive place. The general populace is not allowed to own radios, appliances without a license or even cigarette lighters. Any gathering of more than three on a street is frowned on and the government tells its people when, how often and just what color to paint their houses. Tourists appreciate the apparently sleepy peace beauty and cleanliness of Portugal, but it is gained at great cost of the people's freedom. Spain, on the other hand, is moving fast toward an active, democratic, middle-class economy. There is a car in every Spaniard's future and his consumerism is evident in the rampant pollution besetting Spain. When Dictator Franco dies, Spain may move even more quickly toward a freedom that Portugal seems light years from achieving.

Q: What is Ruby Keeler really like? — R.T., New York, N.Y.

A: The best answer we can give you about the live-and-let-live Ruby, who is a politically conservative grandmother just dying to get off the stage of the hit "No, No, Nanette" and onto the golf courses of California, is that she is worried about a letter she wrote to Mayor John Lindsay. Ruby and other actors asked the Mayor to clean up prostitution in the theatre district. Now the kind-hearted Ruby fears that she might have gotten some of these ladies of the evening with hearts of gold into trouble. She says, "I don't want to put anybody out of business or hurt their feelings."

Q: A lot has been written about freezing people for revival later on when a cure has been discovered for the disease causing their death. What is this called and are many people having it done? — W.P., Evansville, Ind.

A: The process of freezing a body immediately after clinical death and storing it at liquid nitrogen temperature (320 degrees F.) is called the science of cryonics. So far 13 persons have been frozen, though two were later unfrozen and buried. The science has many detractors and is expensive—about $20,000 for freezing and storage. There is a Cryonics Society of California and most of the frozen bodies are in that state in a San Fernando Valley underground cemetery vault.

Q: I've heard that Life magazine is going to go out of business just as Look did. Is this possible? — W.R., Kansas City, Mo.

A: President James Shepley of Time, Inc., insists that Life is on the verge of breaking even. However, the magazine stands to lose about $15 million this year and stockholders claim that the publishing company is keeping its flagship afloat just out of sentiment.

THE GOSSIP COLUMN by ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Remick: Helping George do it.

Keeler: For free enterprise.

Pressure is building to fold the publication before the end of the year for a big tax write-off. Insiders say that by dumping Life the company would also bolster the Wall Street image of Time since the Street thinks that the picture magazine is dragging down the more successful news magazine.

Q: What's happened to Lee Remick? Has she gone into hiding? — G.F., Chattanooga, Tenn.

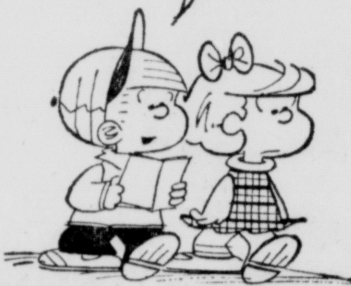

A: Lee divorced her TV director husband and she and her two children have joined the American colony now living in London (including Ava Gardner, Mia Farrow, Tony Curtis, etc.). Right now she's busy campaigning in England for George McGovern, and recently organized a big fund-raising party.

Q: Is Vice President Agnew upset about the talk of John Connally being groomed to replace him? — C.D., Canton, Ohio.

A: Agnew and Connally are actually good friends and the Vice President is so loyal to this year and stockholders claim that the publishing company is keeping its flagship afloat just out of sentiment.

replaced. Friends believe Agnew really doesn't give a damn. He will run if Nixon wants him to, but personally he has no great desire to go on being Vice President.

Jacobus Bruyn House...Historical Debate

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON The Jacobus Bruyn house on the corner of North Front Street and Crown Street in Kingston is nearly 200 years old, but whether or not the building actually reaches the ripe old age of 200 seems to be a matter of debate between the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency and the Kingston Historic Landmarks Preservation Commission, with the Laws and Rules Committee of the Kingston Common Council, and eventually the entire Common Council, standing by as referee.

Will the old Bruyn house die, to be replaced by a parking lot, a more modern structure, or a park? Will it remain as it is — old, vacant and dying? Or will it be rejuvenated to stand as it once did when the founders of the United States were still alive? The answer remains to be seen, and may or may not come out of a meeting between the Laws and Rules Committee and the rest of the Common Council called for Thursday by the committee.

The debate began at a public hearing held by the Laws and Rules Committee on May 24 when the Bruyn house was nominated by the Historic Landmarks Preservation Commission to be designated as a historic site to be marked for preservation and eventual restoration.

Opposition to the designation came from Elmore Yallum, chairman of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, who questioned the historic value of the building, and noted that funds for restoration did not seem to be forthcoming.

Designation was held in abeyance at the hearing pending tour of the site which has not yet taken place by the Laws and Rules Committee and agency and the Landmarks

Commission. The structure in question was erected shortly after the American Revolution and, according to Fred J. Johnston, chairman of the Kingston Landmarks Commission, was at one time "the finest house in the City of Kingston."

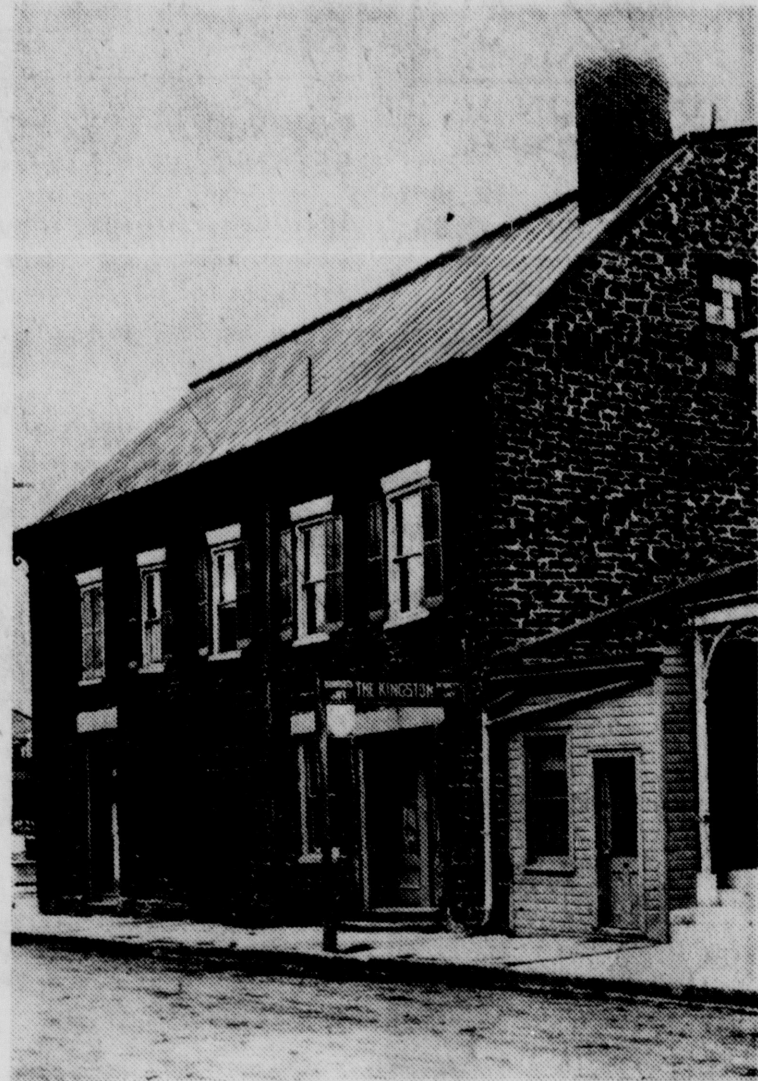

In 1820 the building was occupied by Lieutenant-Colonel Jacobus S. Bruyn who was captain in the New York line of infantry in 1775, and later joined the northern army under command of General Schuyler. In the early 1900's the building was used as a general store as shown in the picture at left.

Johnston maintains that once the building is designated an historic site money will be forthcoming for restoration, including replacement of the gambrel roof. He doesn't admit, however, that at present he does not know where the money will be found.

The Urban Renewal Agency would like to see the site returned to the tax rolls by selling it either to an adjacent owner or a new owner for retail-commercial use.

THEN . . . AND THE FUTURE?

THE JACOBUS BRUYN HOUSE NOW.

PAW's 'Pieces'—Irresistible Oeuvre

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

When Performing Arts of Woodstock decides to be playful, they are downright irresistible. And their current offering, "FIVE LIGHT PIECES FROM THE WORLD OF JEAN TARDIEU," shows them at their best.

The three men and three women performers are most versatile and talented and can persuade you to accept them as many types of human characters. One of the most breezy and beguiling performances of the evening is delivered by a marvelous new actress on the local scene. In the sketch entitled "The Crowd Up at the Manor," Carol Robinson is offered a chance to romp in a variety of roles from mistress of the manor to upstairs and downstairs maids. Miss Robinson is an actress who savors all the comic nuances and she turns the proceedings into an extremely funny quick-change picnic. Comic dialogue seems to be Miss Robinson's strongest feature, and she is admirable and outstanding in this brief piece satirizing the thriller-melodrama.

LeFever Scores

And blessings, too, on PAW veteran John LeFever, who co-stars in "Manor" and must be anything but one-dimensional in roles ranging from gumshoe detective to bumbling handyman. LeFever is an accomplished performer; always devastatingly funny as he performs with the right dynamic shading.

In another piece, "Lovers in the Subway," Tardieu focuses on that eternal war, the one between man and woman. The clashes are sometimes vicious, often passionate, and always violently funny. In dissecting the fiercely embattled romantic problems of an uncommonly interesting couple, Tardieu uses the device of locking them between other passengers on a subway train.

As they work their way by degrees toward each other, using other riders to pass notes and unlock them from strap to strap, the plot becomes almost a series of fantasies, elaborately dramatized by the entire company in action that is humorously choreographed without music or dance steps. We almost caught ourselves swaying to the rumble of the train.

All six actors communicate well in this sketch. Special praise, however, goes again to Carol Robinson as a passenger with a poisonous tongue; to Pat Dougan, who skillfully communicates the warring emotions of a girl torn between denouncing and making up with her boyfriend; and to Sutchie Joseph, as a philosophizing female rider.

Not So Total Recall

Proving Tardieu's greatness, too, as a playwright, is the piece entitled "The Sonata and the Three Gentlemen." While it has always seemed to us that satire needs a hard edge, the wit in this sketch stems from a sort of sing-song conversation between a trio of aging males waxing nostalgic but somewhat unfocused over the past. The men are desperate and funny, but there is a shapelessness to their ability to recall. All three actors in "Sonata" (John LeFever, Jerry Berke and Richard Wilde) handle their roles with a fine sense of timing and delivery, a praiseworthy feat since they are called upon to impress upon the audience the difficulty of communicating. The remainder of the Tardieu-PAW bill is made up of "The Enquiry Office," a piece that cleverly and poignantly bares the narrowness of bureaucracy, and performed as a straightforwardly as possible by Jerry Berke and Richard Wilde; and "Conversation-Sinfonietta," again utilizing the entire company in a language that

ZENA REC PARK OPENS

Recreation Park Opens, Caps Community Effort

The Zena Recreation Park opened Saturday to its 200-plus member families, capping over two years of community-wide effort by scores of people. The Park, a private swim-tennis club, is located near the Kingston reservoir on the Zena-Highwoods road, six miles northeast of Kingston. Family memberships, are still available — the Park is short of its maximum of 300 families.

The Park, set deep in a sylvan 24-acre glade, is entered by a 650-foot paved private road from the Zena-Highwoods Road. Two landscaped swimming pools, four tennis courts, a two-story bathhouse and parking facilities are the major construction features of the Park. The larger pool is 25' x 75' (Olympic-sized), with an 11' deep 30' x 30' diving "L" and two diving boards off the far end. The smaller pool is 20' x 40', with a graduated depth from 6" to 24". The two-story bathhouse contains complete changing and lavatory facilities, along with offices and a snack bar.

Jack Contino, Chairman of the Park's Board of Trustees, stated at the poolside opening: "Today is a proud day for many people who struggled over the long months to create what is before us today. Our hats are off to them — the housewives, businessmen, young people, press, families and our contractors and vendors. All gave unselfishly of their efforts. The Park now begins to prove its worth as a most valuable asset to the Zena-Woodstock-West Hurley-Saugerties environment." Other members of the Park's Board expressed similar sentiments. They are: Valerie Cadden, Treasurer; Harry Sanger, Secretary; and Al Barnett, Charlie Grayson, Trustees. All trustees are assisted by Helen Tunbull.

Joining the Park costs $350 for the first year. Of that amount, $250 is a "one time" cost; i.e. $200 for the membership bond (redeemable) and a $50 initiation fee. Family membership dues are $100 per year.

The Park's full-time staff will be managed by John Hunter, assisted by Tony Badalato. Both men are in Kingston High School's Athletic Department, with a background of youth activity. YMCA Camp management and pool operations. They will be assisted by a full complement of life guard, arts and crafts and maintenance personnel.

The Zena Recreation Park Committee is a standing committee of the Zena Area Homeowners Civic Association, a community betterment group. ZAHCA's Chairman is Will Brey.

Listen Veteran...Tips

KINGSTON Some World War II veterans are paying monthly premiums on their GI insurance policies, the proceeds of which will eventually go to the estate of a deceased relative or a long forgotten friend, advised Charles Culver, State Veteran Counselor, and John Tyler, Director, Ulster County Veterans Service Agency, County Office Building, Kingston, New York.

The sad part of it is, the veterans officials explained, the veterans' immediate families will miss out on the proceeds just when needed most, unless they have considerable commercial purchased protection. Culver and Tyler said this and similar situations arise because some veterans neglect to take the necessary steps to change their beneficiary listings when their situations change through marriage, divorce, births, and deaths.

They urged veterans still holding their GI insurance policies to review their beneficiary listings, making sure their loved ones will not be left out when they die.

Servicemen stationed stateside and overseas were reminded today by Tyler, and Culver to apply early for their military ballot to be sure of casting their vote in the forthcoming presidential election. Applications for military ballots, they said, are handy post-card size and can be airmailed free. They are available from the local counseling center of the New York State Division of Veterans Affairs and the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency in the Ulster County Office Building.

Any adult member of the serviceman's family, may pick up a ballot application and forward it on to him if he is stationed within continental United States.

If the serviceman is overseas, they said, the adult member may obtain a special application in blank and, by proxy, file a request for a ballot on his behalf.

The veterans officials also pointed out that eligible members of a serviceman's family stationed with him also can obtain their ballots, using the same type of application form.

By filling out the postage-free application card and mailing it so that it reaches the Division for Servicemen's Voting in Albany not later than October 26, 1972, eligible New York State servicemen and dependents can be assured of receiving ballots in time to cast their votes.

New Marine Plan

KINGSTON GySgt. Fred Ellis, Marine Corps recruiter at Broadway and Maiden Lane, has announced that men who have been notified to report for induction many enlist in the Marine Corps or Marine Corps Reserve.

Individuals who have 10 days or more prior to scheduled induction date are eligible to enlist for two, three or four years active duty with the Marine Corps. They may also enlist in the Marine Corps Reserve for six months active duty and five and one-half years of monthly drill meetings.

Those affected by the draft and choosing to enlist in the Marines are eligible for most of the various enlistment programs the Marine Corps offers. This includes the $1,500 Enlistment Bonus Program, the Aviation-Guaranteed Program, and Ground Guarantee Programs. An applicant cannot enlist under the 180-day delay program, as he must report for recruit training at least 10 days prior to his scheduled induction date.

This new program allowing draftees an opportunity to enlist in the Marine Corps is the result of an agreement between the Director of Selective Service and the Secretary of Defense. It went into effect June 30.

Additional information on the and other opportunities in the Marine Corps may be obtained from Sgt. Ellis by contacting him at his office.

Saugerties Man...E-Z Post

EAST PATERSON, N.J. The Grand Union Company, 10th largest U.S. food chain, has formed an E-Z Shop Division to plan, construct and operate its growing number of convenience food stores.

The new E-Z Shop Division is headed by Raymond J. Martin of Ho-Ho-Kus, N.J. Martin joined Grand Union in 1948 as a management trainee. He held a variety of field and headquarters positions before being named assistant to the New York region vice-president in 1967. In May, 1969, he was named manager of the then experimental E-Z Shop project. Martin holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from Mount St. Mary's College in Emmitsburg, Md.

Other Division personnel include Robert Schwartz, merchandising manager; John Conway, personnel manager; Dennis McMullen, real estate manager; David B. Cleaves, real estate negotiator and Mrs. Ann Kuba, accounting supervisor.

Schwartz of Paramus, N.J., joined the company in 1958 as a management trainee. Subsequently, he was a grocery sales manager, merchandise analyst, frozen food buyer for the New York Region, assistant to the grocery merchandise manager and assistant sales promotion manager of the company. He holds both a bachelor's degree in retailing and a master's degree in business administration from New York University.

Conway of Saugerties, N.Y., joined Grand Union in 1957 as a management trainee in the company's Empire Division. He served as assistant manager and later manager of the Hyde Park supermarket, and as a district sales manager and assistant personnel manager of the company's Empire Division in upstate New York before assuming his E-Z Shop post.

McMullen of Bergenfield, N.J., joined the company in 1966 as a management trainee. He served as assistant manager of Grand Union's Hawthorne, N.J., supermarket and as Assistant to the Director of Public Relations before joining the E-Z Shop project in 1970. He is a graduate of St. Peter's College, Jersey City, N.J., where he received a bachelor's degree in management.

Cleaves of Lake Hiawatha, N.J., has a bachelor of arts degree from Kansas State University. He joined the company in May, 1970, as a management trainee in the company's Metropolitan Division. He was later assigned to the company's corporate headquarters as a real estate trainee involved in research and development and held that post until being named to his present position.

Mrs. Kuba, who lives in Garfield, N.J., joined the company in 1958 as a computer operator. She was later promoted to assistant to the grocery buyer for the New York Region and held that position until joining the E-Z Shop project in 1970.

The company has been testing convenience store operations in the Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Albany area for the last two years, according to Emerson E. Brightman, executive vice president of The Grand Union Company. Results to date have been most encouraging.

"With the formation of the E-Z Shop Division," Brightman said, "we intend to both add rapidly to the number of convenience stores we now have and extend the operation into new areas."

Nine E-Shops are now open. They are in Hopewell Junction, LaGrange, Ulster, Clifton Park, Gunderland, Wappingers Falls, Hyde Park and Kingston (2). New York. Fourteen additional E-Shops are in various stages of planning and development. A development program encompassing 100 more units is planned by 1975.

E-Z Shop convenience stores of 2,000 to 2,500 square feet are designed to meet demonstrated consumer demands, according to Brightman.

"They are modern, convenient neighborhood stores," he said, "carrying especially selected categories of food and general merchandise that people want to buy quickly, in small quantities, on any day of the week, and at almost any hour from early morning until late at night."

Each E-Z Shop is open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., 365 days a year.

Plans for expansion of the E-Z Shop Division, Brightman said, call for extension of operations north to the Canadian border and south into Westchester and leaves are under negotiation in the Binghamton-Endicott-Johnson City areas, with expansion planned eastward to the Hudson River.

Brightman said future plans call for installations in Vermont, Connecticut, western Massachusetts and northern New Jersey.

Grand Union, which is celebrating its 100th Anniversary this year, currently operates 540 supermarkets and 26 Grand Way general merchandise discount stores in 11 Eastern states, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

RECENT HYDE PARK OPENING — With formation of the E-Z Shop Division, the Grand Union Company plans to add rapidly to the number of the small, 2,500 square foot convenience stores it operates. Long-range development plans call for 100 or more E-Z Shops by 1975. This photo shows an architect's sketch of an E-Z Shop that was recently opened in Hyde Park.

Sears Manager Notes New Method on Billing

KINGSTON Sears, Roebuck and Co. has announced plans to adopt the average daily balance method of computing finance charges on revolving charge accounts in New York State.

Ralph J. Young, Kingston store manager, said the change will be reflected in customers' September billings.

The average daily balance is determined by dividing the sum of the balances for each day of the monthly billing period by the number of days in the period.

The balance outstanding for each day is determined by subtracting payments and credits on the day they occur from the previous day's balance.

Under the plan, purchases in the current month will not be included in the average balance for purposes of determining finance charges.

Young gave an example. "Suppose your opening balance during a month is $100. Fifteen days before your billing date you make a $10 payment, return $10 in merchandise, and make a purchase of $25. "The balance would be $105 until the end of the month, and the finance charge would be calculated on $100 for 15 days and $80 for 15 days, averaging $90, with the $25 purchase not included.

Saugerties Taxpayers

GLASCO The recently formed Saugerties Taxpayers Group will hold a public meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the new Glasco Firehall.

The group, headed by Frank Mauro of Flatbush, was formed to protest against the recent reassessment of the Town of Saugerties, which it said was done in "an incomplete manner." It also called the town's three man Board of Assessors "highly unqualified."

Mrs. Alice Tipp, president of the We've Had It Taxpayers Association (WHITA) of Ulster County, and one of the taxpayer group's founders, said that Thursday night's meeting was being held to inform the public of progress made to date. At torney G. Thomas Rea, the group's legal counsel, will be present to outline future plans for the group, Mrs. Tipp said.

The group conducted demonstrations in front of the Saugerties Town Hall during the recent Grievance Day to express their dissatisfaction with assessment practices in the town.

The Taxpayers Group also plans legal action against the town's assessors challenging the legality of the present assessments, according to Mrs. Tipp. Grounds for the legal action would be that assessments were "discriminatory and were done in an unprofessional manner by being held to inform the public inspection," she said.

Ancient Shrine In Peril

By GERARD LOUGHRAN
CAIRO (UPI)—Unless something is done soon, the world stands to lose one of its most priceless antiquities—the 16 fabled temples of Philae.

This shrine of antiquity dating back 2,400 years to the Ptolemies and the Caesars stands on the partially submerged island of Philae in the Nile, which already has begun its work of destruction.

Every day the river rises and falls some 20 feet, and the resulting erosion eventually will cut into the buildings like a knife, reducing them to ruins.

The plan is to shift the temples block by block to a nearby island but as yet the move is only on paper.

"It is terrible that nothing is being done," said Kamal Mallakh, a leading Egyptian archaeologist. "Every day wasted is a great loss, particularly when it is going to take seven or eight years to complete the removal."

The Greek historian Herodotus coined the phrase "Pearl of Egypt" for Philae. Poised on the edge of the Aswan Desert about five miles upstream from Aswan, it is the last stop in Egyptian Nubia, unequalled in beauty except for Abu Simbel.

Philae boasts the great Temple of Isis, the universal goddess whose cult in Roman times spread far beyond Egypt. To the east lies Trajan's celebrated kiosk from which an avenue of sphinxes leads to the famous gate of Hadrian with its chapels and three colonnades.

The island monuments recall the influence of Greco-Roman architecture and form a unique ensemble in Egyptian art.

The first threat to Philae came back in 1902 when the first Aswan Dam was constructed. The result then was that the island and its monuments were almost totally submerged for nine months of the year.

When the waters dropped the blue and white paintings that formerly adorned the capitals of columns had disappeared and many of the sandstone walls had become so soft you could stick a finger into them.

At the same time, experts reinforced the foundations and the flood waters cleansed the stone of destructive salts. On balance, the effect was less destructive than the situation resulting from completion of the new Aswan High Dam.

As a result of this Soviet-Egyptian venture, the temples are submerged all year round to more than half their height and the daily rise and fall of Lake Nasser behind the dam cuts more dangerously into the stone than the previous total submersion.

In May, 1968, the Egyptian government, supported by a committee of international experts led by UNESCO, decreed that the monuments be dismantled and re-erected on the neighboring island of Agilkia, which is above the maximum level of the river at all times.

A UNESCO statement at the time said: "The work, which will take nearly four years, should start early in 1969."

To this day, not a stone has been moved.

Said Mallakh, who restored the Isis temple immediately after World War II: "The problem is money, naturally. The overall cost will be $6 million of which $1 million must be in foreign currency."

UNESCO is seeking help from other nations, special postage stamps are being issued and Egypt hopes to net at least $383,000 for Philae from the current Tutankhamen exhibition in London.

Said Mallakh: "The plan is for an Italian contracting firm and Egyptian labor to number the blocks and move them the necessary 600 yards to Agilkia Island. But this will take at least seven years. Preparatory exploration and marking alone will take six months."

"If we want the whole project to be completed in safety by 1980 we have to start now."

Legislature to Hear Drug Commission Chairman

By LYNN MULVANEY
KINGSTON
Dr. Edmund Reppert, chairman of the Ulster County Drug Commission, will be the guest speaker at the afternoon session of the Ulster County Legislature, Thursday, July 13, at 4 in the County Office Building.

Dr. Reppert will review the work of the commission since its inception, Feb. 11, 1971 and since the Methadone Clinic opened Sept. 13 of that year.

Among the 18 pieces of legislation to be acted upon at the board's 8 p.m. session the same day are the following:

- Authorizing for the continuance of the county's participation in the Mid-Hudson Crime Control Planning Board.
- Proclaiming Volunteer Fireman Week for July 23-29.
- Requesting the State Legislature to authorize absentee ballots for primary elections.

- Authorizing the use of the county office building and its facilities on Election Night, 1972.
- Approving a contract for a new roof for the Ulster County Court House.
- Establishing a local law to provide for an alternative form of government for the County of Ulster.
- Setting a hearing for the Ulster County Community College budget for July 27.

- Requesting a study by the Bridge and Highway Committee of a southern bypass of the village of New Paltz.
- The transfer of parking ground funds for the purchase of a new air conditioner for the collection booth.

- A request that school and property taxes be paid in installments.
- Authorizing two additional case workers for the Social Services Department.

- Contracting for snow removal and ice control between the County of Ulster and the State of New York.
- Amending the 1972 budget of the Ulster County Drug Commission.

- Imploping the state to proceed with plans to construct the new arterial route and bridge linking the City of Kingston and Town of Esopus.

- Protesting the increasing debts of state agencies.

There will also be several resolutions dealing with attendance at conferences, cancellation of erroneous taxes and transfers of funds.

Tax Split Sought

KINGSTON
Calling for payment of property and school taxes on the installment basis, County Legislator Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist. 7) feels it would "lessen the financial pinch" in view of the "ever-increasing rise in taxes and the undo burden on the taxpayer."

In a resolution to come before the Ulster County Legislature at its July 13 meeting, Debrosky suggests that the New York State law be changed to allow town and school tax collectors to collect taxes in split payments as follows:

General taxes in the county and town would be due for first payment between Feb. 1 and March 3. The second payment would be due by May 31.

School District taxes would be due for first payment by Oct. 15 and the second payment would be due by Dec. 15.

A resolution would be required of the county in order to make the change and each individual town or school district wishing to participate would adopt a similar resolution, Debrosky explained.

Debrosky asked that his proposal be referred to the County Legislature's Tax Base Study Committee for its approval or disapproval and that it be reported out of committee by the December meeting of the board.

Debts System Scored

KINGSTON
Objecting to the fact that the State Legislature has "detoured a round" the constitutional requirement that all long-term debts be approved by voters, County Legislator Richard D. Nace (R-Dist. 2) wants the Ulster County Legislature to go on record opposing such practice.

Nace said that the detour is accomplished by increasing the debt of state agencies, which is technically not the debt of the state.

"The state has a moral commitment to provide funds in the event an agency defaults in its debt obligations," Nace said.

As an example, Nace said, "the State Legislature approved legislation which increased the borrowing power of the State Urban Development Corporation by $500 million; increased the borrowing power of the State Housing Finance Agency by $500 million; expanded the borrowing powers of the Housing Finance Agency to include $1 billion for the construction of nursing homes and hospitals and authorized the sale of $250 million in bonds for construction and new equipment for New York City subways. It further allows the Thruway Authority to sell $100 million in bonds to finance the reconditioning and preservation of state highways."

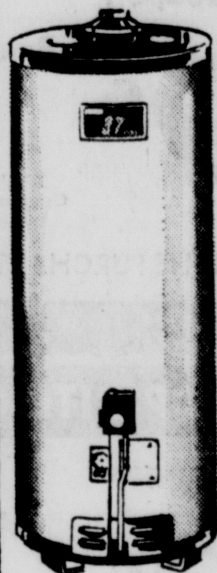

Nace suggests that the county go on record opposing this type of financing and that notification be sent to area assemblyman and state senators.

A Daily Freeman Ad Today Will Bring Instant Results...

FANTASYLAND — These are just a few of the 600 youngsters who participated Tuesday in Fantasyland Day at Hut-ton Park, the first major all-playground event of the Kings-ton Recreation Department's summer program. The young-sters were invited to dress in costumes representing story-book tales, winners were selected, and then everyone was treated to a day-long feast of games, contests and re-freshments. The guy at left, incidentally, is Summer Ac-tivities Director Ron Gabriele, who doesn't look the least bit harried after staging the whole event. (Freeman photo by Krub)

Red Hook Town Board . . . Water Problems Discussed

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK water from outside sources almost every day of late, despite the heavy rain this season.

It was stated that persons in Colonial Manor had been advised by the company to bathe their children every other day and to "flush every other time."

Residents were again com-plain-ing about rates, with some paying up to $86 a quarter. This was a major contention in PSC hearings a year ago. Town Supervisor Warren Simmons said that the PSC and Dutchess County Department of Health had not, and possibly could not, aid in the quantity problem as the county is primarily con-cerned with the water quality, which has remained acceptable.

He also noted plans previously filed with Dutchess County Planning Department which called for doubling the size of Linden Acres to 400 homes in the future, and he said that some construction is presently taking place.

Simmons told The Freeman that he was concerned about the capability of Annandale Water Works to adequately supply and more homes, and that a health hazard and possible fire safety hazard could result.

The supervisor added that an opinion given him from the Association of Towns indicated that the town might be able to run a water system and pos-sibly gain 50 per cent reimburse-ment from the state for the purchase price.

"We are sticking our noses in a little," he said, not that the town could take any remedial action, but for the good of the citizens involved. He noted that it is presently primarily an in-vestigative and fact-gathering operation.

The board also officially adopted revised subdivision regulations, the subject of a public hearing May 15, which now make it a little easier for small subdivisions to pass through the red tape than large ones.

A recommendation from the Town Planning Board was im-plemented. If members of that body miss more than 25 per cent of its meetings over a six-month period they can now be replaced by the Town Board.

An eight-inch thick volume of compiled town laws, ordinances, Works to adequately supply and more homes, and that a health lishers Corp. and will be re-viewed by the board before ac-ceptance.

The town Conservation Coun-cil will reorganize at 7:30 p.m., July 14. Three new members approved were Charles New-man, a youth member, Pro-fessor Michael Rosenthal, Bard College professor; and Susan Ellis, a Vassar College grad-uate.

The board will not allow town equipment to be used at the Red Hook Recreation Park, as previously agreed. Highway Superintendent Lawrence Ha-gen said he had been advised it was illegal to use public equipment on private property.

Village Complex...More Funds Needed

RHINEBECK of the original purchase price for the site, total cost is estimated to be about $406,000.

It appears as though another $9,500 may be needed to take care of debts incurred in the building of the Rhinebeck Village Hall-Firehouse complex. It was stated at Tuesday evening's session of the Board of Trustees, to what this apparent discrepancy is due has not yet been discovered, according to Mayor Peter Sipperley, and all contracts will be thoroughly reviewed in an effort to find out.

The original bond issue was for $350,000. Another $20,000 bond was issued when it be-came apparent that the original funds would not suffice. To date, total revenue is about $369,000 and, with the addition Village Clerk Patricia Pflum suggested that two capital notes for the needed amount be se-tated at Tuesday evening's session of the Board of Trustees, to what this apparent discrepancy is due has not yet been discovered, according to Mayor Peter Sipperley, and all contracts will be thoroughly reviewed in an effort to find out.

Another complication is that Potter and Sons, Port Ewen, the general contractor for the struc-ture is now out of business. Some of the finishing details have been assigned elsewhere. In other business, Sipperley said he had been contacted by the joint town-village recreation commission and asked whether basketball and tennis courts might be constructed on vil-lage owned land at the corner of South Parsonage and Park Place, near the high school.

Trustees Francis Kinney and Eugene Trombini said they felt the residents of the area should first be consulted. An informal board opinion was given saying the idea is "worthy of consideration."

Elmer Cranz of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. told the board he had been asked by Sidney Rosenberg, developer of Village Green Apartments, whether the company would install street lighting in the development.

Cranz explained that the company did not install lighting on private property so as not to conflict with local con-tractors, but would if the vil-lage were to take over the new streets.

Sipperley said that there had been no agreements with Village Green Apartments on taking over the streets.

The board paid tribute to Emmett Donohue, recently retired after 30 years service with the New York State Police and honored at a dinner at the Beekman Arms last week.

And the mayor announced that a special collection to aid victims of Hurricane Agnes in western New York would be held July 16 from 1-6 p.m. at the Masonic Temple in Rhinebeck with Masons and DeMolay members coordinating the effort. Articles wanted are all types of clothing, canned goods, toilet articles. Checks may be sent to the village clerk's office for collection.

Ad Addition

The Grand Opening advertise-ments of the Albany Public Market, Mammoth Mall, King-ston, should have contained the fact that the store reserves the right to limit quantities. This line was erroneously omitted from The Freeman advertise-ments.

Gilman Urges Area Farmers ...Apply for Flood Aid

MIDDLETOWN Upon receiving word, recently that Orange County had been added to the list of New York State Counties declared major disaster areas, Assemblyman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-C, 95th District), immediately began urging hard-hit area farmers to apply for Farmers Home Administration (F.H.A.) and Soil Conservation Service (S.C.S.) emergency aid programs to enable them to recoup losses suffered in the recent heavy rains and flooding of the Wallkill River.

State Legislator Gilman stated, "The announcement comes immediately after I have returned from Pine Island where I conducted an emergency flood meeting attended by more than 100 area farmers and representatives of over 30 Federal and State agencies that I have been working with to gain emergency relief for our desperate farmers. I have been in Washington and meetings with representatives of the Office of Emergency Preparedness (O.E.P. there). Looking toward the future, Assemblyman Gilman noted, "As a follow-up to both Fridays emergency meeting in Pine Island and O.E.P. Director Lincoln's declaration, I will be pressing the Corps of Engineers and S.C.S. to implement programs against future flooding with emergency funds."

POUNDING SURF — Twenty-foot waves churned up by high winds slash seawall along Manila, Philippine Islands, show-casing Roxas Boulevard recently, flooding portions of the road way. Week-long rains coupled with Typhoon Susan have caused wide-spread flooding, forcing evacuation of thousands in outlying provinces. (UPI)

Local Support Cited

POUGHKEEPSIE "It was reassuring to have received support from such a good percentage of Democrats in the June 20 Primary," Satrio Kazolias, defeated Democratic assembly candidate in the 99th District, said today.

"Let me guarantee these good people that they can still vote for me No. 7 on the Liberal line."

"I won't go away. I am in this assembly race to win," Kazolias, referring to his Democratic opponent, Philip Magnarella, who was the winner in the Primary, said: "Since it was the McGovern Democrats that pushed Magnarella to victory, it is reasonable to assume that Magnarella is their spokesman in the 99th Assembly District."

"My opponents blanket approval of the New York State Urban Development Corporation that can by law deny the citizens of their constitutional right to their day in court, speaks volumes."

He also suggested that local property owners watch the Westchester County Urban Development Corporation affairs.

"They can watch while Urban Development Corporation beats Westchester County to its knees — maybe then, they will understand why Magnarella and GOP Assemblyman Einsiee Betros approve of and support UDC."

Sculpture Professor Tabbed Emeritus

NEW PALTZ Benjamin Karp, professor of sculpture at the State University College at New Paltz, has been designated professor emeritus by the State University Board of Trustees effective Feb. 1, 1972.

Karp, a New Paltz faculty member for over two decades, was one of the first organizers of the present art program at the college and among the founders and writers of the college faculty bylaws.

He was promoted to emeritus status in recognition of his long and productive service to the college. One of his activities has been the college's art collection, numbering almost 1,000 pieces and including works of Rembrandt, Durer, Toulouse-Lautrec, Matisse, and Nolde. More than three-quarters of the collection was donated to the college through his efforts. Professor Karp has done a bust of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the FDR School in Hyde Park and has had a number of one-man shows in Paris and New York and at several prominent museums. He has published several articles on the use of wood for architectural decoration and has lectured on the subject. His book, "Wood Motifs in American Domestic Architecture," is considered an original and authoritative examination of this historical art form. Professor Karp retired from the active faculty at New Paltz in February, 1972, and now resides with his family in North Bennington, Vt.

HOMELESS STRAY — At the Ulster County SPCA shelter on Brabant Road, just off Sawkill Road, Town of Ulster, this stray short-haired collie quietly sits in a kennel hoping some area resident will adopt it and provide a home. The dog was found in the Rosendale area. A female, it has been spayed and had all necessary shots. The person who adopts the dog certainly will have a fine dog, a shelter spokesman said. Arrangements to adopt the collie can be easily arranged by contacting the SPCA shelter officials. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Industrial Agency Discussion Planned

SHAWANGUNK The Industrial Development Agency of the Town of Shawangunk, recently created by legislation sponsored by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and signed into law by Gov.

Rockefeller will be discussed by the Town Board of Shawangunk Assemblyman Bell at a public meeting at the Middle School, Walkkill, Thursday, July 13 at 8 p.m.

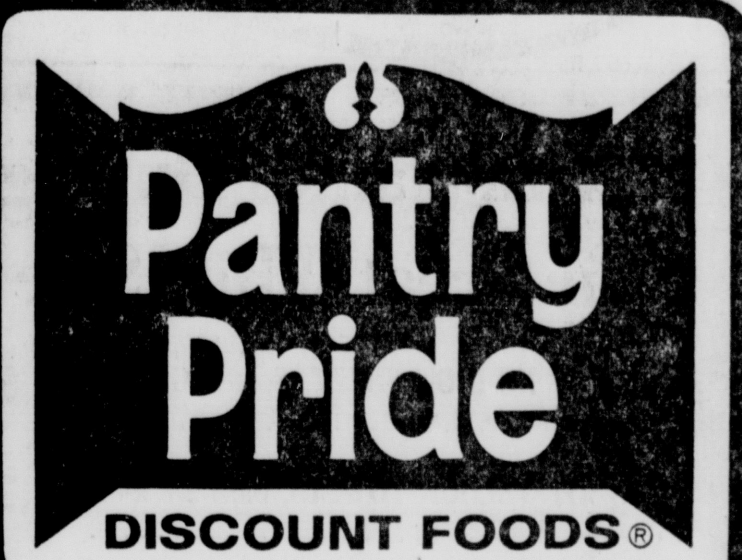

An independent agency, it will be directed by a corporate body of private citizens appointed by the Shawangunk Town Board. "It is important," Bell stated, "that the residents of the town who are interested in its future attend this meeting so that they will fully understand the benefits which they may derive from the agency and employ it to their best advantage."

Sasso asked all area residents to contribute as the donations are used to finance the bazaar and fireworks with the total profits going toward operating the new firehouse. The Fire District line is from the Town of Ulster line north to the Village of Saugerties line, east side of the Esopus Creek to the Hudson River and includes all of Windmere, Dutch Settlement, Barclay Heights, Meadows Court, Garden Circle, Kings Village, Glasco and Flatbush. Joseph J. Beekeepers Report

The Beekeepers Indemnity Payment Program now requires beekeepers to submit information no later than July 15 each year on the number of colonies of bees and queen nuclei maintained at each apiary and the location of each apiary. This information must be filed at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Office. The colonies and queen nuclei so reported this year will be the maximum number for which beekeepers will be eligible to receive an indemnity payment for 1972. The ASC Office for Ulster County is at 54 John Street, Kingston.

Unlikely Volunteers Staff Pittsburgh Free Clinic

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—John "Spike" Pfahler doesn't look like the sort of man you expect to be helping run a medical facility.

His brown hair curls over his collar. He almost always wears faded blue jeans. He's a college dropout. His favorite place in the world is a bar in Amsterdam where the intoxicants come in hot pipes, not cold glasses. Before he started his present work, he was employed in the draft resistance movement.

Now Pfahler puts in a 60-hour week in the basement of the East End Christian Church as medical coordinator of the Pittsburgh Free Clinic. The four nights a week that medicine is practiced here, the main room looks like a large, low key party of college students and a few mod professors.

Under posters urging peace, about 40 persons in their late teens and early 20s, in long hair, dungarees, work shirts, head bands and shawls, sit on dilapidated couches in the waiting area talking animatedly in small groups.

In four immediately adjacent consulting rooms, two gynecologists and two general practitioners examine patients. Between each pair of consulting rooms is a "prep room" where the next patient strips, attended by a nurse.

Three young women in dungarees bustle about a well-equipped medical lab, at the same tasks they perform in starched whites as hospital technicians by day. Further removed are the small rooms where troubled young men and women see psychological counselors.

All of these highly trained individuals are volunteers. Each clinic night, another half-dozen volunteers serve as patient greeters and organizers, to maintain the relaxed atmosphere of the waiting area.

The physicians range from older men with children the same age as the patients, to young interns. The counselors include Ph.D.s in clinical psychology, full professors, psychiatric social workers and college guidance counselors. Asked why they work at the free clinic, they sound like volunteers anywhere—they like the work, they like the people.

Since the Free Clinic was opened in September, 1970, by a group of physicians concerned about untreated medical problems rampant among the city's youth, approximately 15,000 persons have come for free help or treatment.

About half the patients suffer from sexual problems. Forty per cent sought testing or treatment for venereal disease. The rest had "general medical problems."

Pfahler was recruited for his job because he spent four years as a Navy operating room technician.

"The first free clinic was founded in the Haight-Ashbury section of San Francisco in 1967," he said. "There are now about 200 free clinics across the country. All of them began because of the same need—health services are not given or are not humanely offered to people who look like hippies, to minorities, or to people on welfare."

The Free Clinic here draws many dropouts. Guitarist Les Soucie, who has sung for his supper on the streets of Chicago, New York, Detroit and Cleveland as "Les More-or-Less," said: "This town takes better care of its freaks than any other. The free clinic is fabulous."

The clinic also treats thousands of college students, away from home, unable to find private doctors, and put off by emergency rooms.

"Some of the kids come because it's free, some because it's at night, some because they feel nobody's making any money off them and some because they've had bad experiences elsewhere," says Dr. Louis Meyers, a prominent gynecologist who helped found the clinic.

Adolescents with sexual problems come to the clinic to find "medical treatment without moral overtones," another medical man said.

"The young people don't want counseling that their behavior is improper," he said. "When you're suffering from an inherently painful or disturbing venereal disease and someone lays on you the sins of your behavior, it's really more than you can bear."

According to a pretty blonde nurse, this group includes "every week about 20 teen-age girls living with their parents (who) come into the clinic and usually at some point, when the girl wishes, her parents are brought into the discussion."

The V.D. counselors try to calm the patients, who are usually quite upset by having a professor who heads the counseling service at the clinic.

"We try to persuade them to bring in their contacts and thus stem the tide. Drug problems we turn over to two excellent programs in the city."

Dr. Bernard Yadoff, a professor who heads the counseling service at the clinic, said: "With drugs, V.D., any type of destructive behavior, our approach is to ask: Do you see what you are doing to yourself? Don't you think you are worth more than that?"

The clinic spent $23,000 on its time to spend money. The clinic spent $23,000 on its time to spend money. The clinic spent $23,000 on its time to spend money.

Auto Recall In Millions

DETROIT (UPI)—One dictionary defines recall as "to summon back." That's what American automakers have been doing in increasing numbers since the National Highway Safety Act went into effect in September of 1966.

Since that time, a total of 23,667,999 U.S. cars have been recalled—almost one of every two built in the period.

In 1971, more than one million 1971 model cars were recalled to find and repair suspected defects—one of every eight 1971 cars produced. So far this year, the industry has recalled more than 650,000 of its 1972 models—two-thirds of them by Ford Motor Co.

In addition, General Motors recalled 6.7 million Chevrolet cars built between 1965 and 1969—the largest single recall campaign in history—to put restraints on engine mounts to prevent the engine from shifting if a mount broke.

Despite the best efforts of the record does not seem to improve. The figures, however, can be misleading since, in many cases, large numbers are recalled because a few may have a defective part.

The specific cars can't be pinpointed; a whole week's production may have to be recalled to find just a few cars. Chrysler has had 82 recall campaigns since 1966. But a spokesman says that in some campaigns, only 10 per cent of the cars recalled were suspected of having a defect, and only 1 per cent actually had the defect.

Why, in an industry that is 75 years old and has developed the most sophisticated techniques and machinery for building good cars, do such defects keep recurring?

There's a little bit of everything in an overall answer—engineering, design, quality control, human error on the assembly line, defective parts from a supplier, and just plain goof-ups. And, since 1966, the industry has been required by law to publicize each of its recall campaigns, adding to the impression that they just don't build them the way they used to.

An example of engineering error is Ford's wholly redesigned and restyled Mercury Montego and Ford Torino for 1972. The entire production run of 404,000 cars was recalled in May because a design error led to excessive bearing wear and the possibility the rear wheels would fall off.

Chrysler recently recalled 42,000 of its 1971 and 1972 Crickets, its British minicar import, to replace the rack bar on its rack and pinion steering assembly. American desire for attachments placed a heavy strain on the steering mechanism than was experienced on the Avenger, the Cricket counterpart in England.

Another design error caused Ford to recall nearly 232,000 Pintos because excess fumes were being retained in the air cleaner while the car was not moving, causing some fires when the car was started.

Some problems were caused by human error on the assembly line. American Motors had to recall a small number of Gremlins and Hornets because a workman installed the wrong bolt on the disc brake caliper.

Some recalls were for trivial things. Ford recalled 700 air conditioned cars because they had decals indicating recommended tire pressure and other information not corresponding to the tires on the cars.

An example of just plain goof-up was Ford's recall of about 3,600 cars because the triangular vertical shaft of the bumper jack would not fit into the base plate. Chrysler had a similar recall—both caused by suppliers not matching the correct base plates with the vertical columns.

American automakers aren't alone in problems with defects. The three major imports—Volkswagen, Toyota and Datsun—have each had their share.

In the past two years, about 22 per cent of the 550,000 Toyotas sold in this country have been involved in recall campaigns while Datsun has recalled just over 300,000 cars in two years. In both cases, many of the cars were still in transit from Japan or had not been sold.

VW's latest recall—4,700 type four, four-door sedan station wagons in April—points up the trivial nature of some campaigns. The cars bore the incorrect date on the government certification system.

The foreign makers are not presented with the same problems on their cars sold outside the United States because European standards vary country by country and are nonexistent in many nations outside the United States.

Most European countries have no counterpart to the U.S. Department of Transportation and have no regulations regarding defects found in cars.

The auto companies accept responsibility for the errors in assembly of their cars and are required to fix the defect free of charge to the customer. Getting the customer to bring the car in to have the defect repaired is another thing altogether. Recalls are lengthy procedures as evidenced by two recall campaigns from February, 1969.

GM recalled 2.5 million cars in that month to replace a carburetor part and about 20 per cent—or 500,000—still have not been brought in. Of 2.4 million Chevrolets recalled at the same time to seal the underbody from exhaust leaks, 32 per cent still must be fixed.

Many of these cars may not even exist anymore or may have changed ownership several times.

GM announced its engine mount recall campaign for 6.7 million Chevrolets last Dec. 4. The first letters notifying customers to bring their cars in to have cable restraints installed did not go into the mail until Feb. 21 and by the end of May, just over one million had been brought in to dealers for the work.

Today's automobile is a highly complex and sophisticated vehicle. It contains more than 15,000 parts, all of which are assembled by people.

Cars come off assembly lines that produce 60 to 75 cars an hour. The Vega assembly line at GM's Lordstown, Ohio, plant turns out 102 cars an hour—a speed some of its workers claim is too fast to do a good job.

It could be a coincidence, but the smallest of the Big Four automakers has the best record on defect-free cars: American Motors has recalled 52,060 cars during the past two and one-half years out of a total production of 511,698. That's an average of close to one recall for every 10 cars built, against the industry average of one in eight over the past year.

Owner Tells Own Sad Tale

DETROIT (UPI)—If you're one of the more than 400,000 persons who bought a 1972 Ford Torino or Mercury Montego before mid-April this year, you know about auto recall campaigns. I'm in that group, being the owner of a 1972 Gran Torino Brougham.

On April 17, Ford announced it was recalling its new Torino and Montego to install auxiliary retainer plates. Eight days later it said it also would replace the rear axle shafts of all the cars to "eliminate any question as to the reliability of the Ford's 1972 Torino and Montego automobiles."

The problem was excessive wear on bearings which in the extreme might cause the back wheels to fall off. The wheels did fall off on at least 20 cars.

Within the eight-day period of the announcements, Torino and Montego owners who inquired at dealers got the response, "We're waiting for parts." It was mid-May before the certified letters began arriving at owners' homes.

What is frustrating to an owner is that long wait between the public announcement that a recall has begun and the certified letter telling him to return his car to his dealer. The companies also notify the news media of the recall and stories are printed and broadcast. That's when the car owner begins to wonder how safe his car is.

"What happens then is that everybody brings their car in before they get the notice or we get the parts. They get mad when we say we can't fix it yet," said the Ford dealer in suburban Detroit who sold this reporter his Gran Torino Brougham.

That was two days before I was to begin a two-week vacation, but the service manager at the Ford dealership said the parts weren't in and added there was nothing to worry about—the car had gone just under 5,000 miles.

By the time I returned from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Canada, the car had traveled over 6,000 miles. The wheels hadn't fallen off, but the thought was always at the back of my mind.

My dealer has since installed the retainer plate and a second certified letter from Ford should arrive by the end of the summer to bring the car in a second time. Until then, there is a chance the bearings could fail, but at least I and other Montego and Torino drivers will hear them go.

Hurricane Season... Significant Changes

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—Boatmen along the Atlantic Coast and the Gulf of Mexico already have had to contend with one death-dealing hurricane since the season for those tropical storms began June 1.

Without doubt, there will be more before the season ends Nov. 30.

Actually, according to the Environmental Science Services Department of Commerce, on average, six Atlantic hurricanes occur each year.

However, ESSA points out there are significant deviations from the average. For example, in 1917 and 1950, 11 hurricanes were observed, while in 1907 and 1914, none was recorded.

In the 1893, 1950 and 1961 seasons, four hurricanes were observed in progress at the same time.

Tropical Cyclone

Hurricanes are tropical cyclones in which winds reach speeds of 74 miles per hour or more, and blow in a large spiral around a relatively calm center—the "eye."

These winds reach maximum velocity in a circular band extending outward 20 or 30 miles from the rim of the eye. Near the eye, hurricane winds may gust to more than 200 miles per hour, and the entire storm dominates the ocean surface and lower atmosphere over tens of thousands of square miles.

Within the eye itself, winds are light and skies are clear or partly cloudy. Many persons have been killed or injured when the calm eye lured them out of shelter, only to be caught in the hurricane winds at the far side of the eye.

As a hurricane approaches and moves across the coastline, it brings huge waves, raising tides some 15 feet or more above normal. The rise may come rapidly and produce flash floods in coastal lowlands, or may come in the form of giant waves.

Waves and currents erode beaches and barrier islands, undermine waterfront structures, and wash out highway and railroad beds.

Actually, while hurricane winds do much damage, drowning is the greatest cause of hurricane deaths.

Spawning Ground
Most hurricanes are born in the tropical and subtropical North Atlantic Ocean, the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico. In the tropics, their forward movement is very slow, usually 15 miles per hour or less.

As the storm moves farther from the Equator, forward speed tends to increase. At middle latitudes it may exceed 60 miles per hour in extreme cases.

Hurricanes are driven by the heat released by condensing water vapor and by external mechanical forces. Once cut off from the warm ocean, the storm begins to die, starved for water and heat energy, and dragged apart by friction as it moves over the land.

Girls' names have been used by the National Weather Service to identify tropical cyclones in the Atlantic, Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico since 1953. In 1960, a semipermanent list of four sets of names in alphabetical order was introduced, and in 1971 the list was expanded to 10 sets of names.

The letters Q, U, X, Y, and Z are not included because of the scarcity of names beginning with those letters.

After 10 years, when the 10 sets have been used, the sets will be used over again in the same manner.

Mental Health Worker... An Experiment as 'Patient'

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — "Just because I was sick," the young woman asked, "did this mean I had to be treated like an animal?"

The woman, Christine Ruiz, is a mental health worker. She posed her question after spending a weekend recently as a "patient" at Elgin State Hospital. The weekend was an experiment to show mental hospital employees what it is like to be one of their charges.

"So many times I was ignored just as if I didn't exist,"

Miss Ruiz said. "The lost identity and dehumanizing, inferior feeling is all felt by the patients and so forgotten by the staff."

Twenty-nine employees were selected at random to be "patients" in a mock ward. Another 21 were selected to staff the ward. Observers took notes and filmed the proceedings.

The "patients" went through regular admitting procedures and were given showers and issued ill-fitted clothing. They were searched and all personal belongings were confiscated.

They ate in a dining room with actual mental patients.

The "staff" treated the "patients" just as they would treat patients in their wards. They gave tokens as rewards and took away tokens as punishment.

Interviews afterward showed the experience was realistic and often frightening. A questionnaire filled out by participants pants also demonstrated its realism.

"It was scary to me," said Nancy Klein, a DePaul University sociologist who was an advisor to the experiment. She said she feared the employees who became "patients" would regress in their behavior.

The patients were anxious, angry and restless. Dr. Donahue Tremaine, a Roosevelt University psychology professor who was an advisor, said the experiment also showed mental hospitals can cause people to react in ways which are considered abnormal.

The observers said the "patients": A—Stayed together but did not react to each other. B—Lied and cheated to get what they needed.

C—Complained of having no place to be alone.

D—Moved about constantly to reassure themselves that "everything is OK because I can feel something happening."

Tom Richardson, a hospital psychologist who helped design the experiment, said: "It has gotten people to see ways to change some things."

One "patient," who complained about the "horrible soap," lack of privacy and noise in the ward, said after the experiment:

"My God, my God. If it's that bad on our own wards we ought to run back right now and fix it."

"I don't think I've screamed at a patient since I got back," one woman said. And now, no matter how ridiculous the patient's request, he said, he has tried to honor it.

Steve Piser, a "patient" who escaped several times during the experiment, told an interviewer he did it because "things just got a little intense." For him, "the atmosphere changed from hospital to jail."

Sandra Kinser, a worker who as a "patient" became "extremely depressed and upset," said one of the first things she noticed was a "fantastic loss of energy."

"It took a great deal of effort just to walk to lunch," she said. "A lot of things I used to attribute to paranoid problems in patients are real. I now understand why people don't have feelings."

Steve Wendorf, a "staff" member in the experiment, said all mental health workers, including administrators, would benefit from having to be "patients." Training programs for mental health workers should include a program patterned after the experiment, he said.

A questionnaire answered by the "patients" after the experiment showed that 75 per cent did not feel they were being treated as real people.

All said they especially felt a lack of freedom. 89 per cent said they felt at times that they were being deprived of their identity and 93 per cent said they felt as though they were in prison.

2,000-Year-Old London.... Many Cities Under Its Streets

LONDON (UPI)—There are many cities under London's streets. This city is 2,000 years old, and although some are older few have preserved more of their past.

A few buildings remain from Shakespeare's London. One or two date from the city William conquered in 1066. Bits of Roman London survive—fragments of a city wall, temple foundations, a jumbled horde of artifacts.

To isolate one London from the jumble, to assemble one era from many, is a work of much patience and high scholarship just now the little-known Kensington Palace Museum in the same building where Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon live, is working this conjuring trick with the fragments of one specific past.

It depicts as the London which first saw itself as "a mirror for all England," a city of 40,000 we would call tiny but the late 14th century thought of awesome size—the city of "The Canterbury Tales" and their author, Geoffrey Chaucer.

"Chaucer's London," as the remarkable exhibition is called, is intended to give "some impression of what it was like to be alive in late 14th century London," according to John Hayes, the museum's director. The exhibit is not primarily of works of art, though there are many lovely ones on view. Nor is it a collection of rusty trivia, though there is some of that.

Instead it is a collection of mini-exhibits on every fact of life, from administration to the Black Death, from architecture to horse harness, from coin and jewels to a furnished 14th Century room.

Chaucer's time was one of almost explosive change. Society's institutions — king and court, guilds and the law, ministries and industries—were just then settling firmly into the pattern they have held ever since.

Chaucer runs through the exhibition as through his period — not as the central character but as a recurring, unifying thread. He was born about 1343, the son of a wine merchant, and was a civil servant all his life. Chaucer wrote only in his spare time, lived in a city gate, kept the accounts of London's wool trade, and rose to be clerk of the King's Works.

LPA Players to Present Oscar Wilde Comedy 'The Importance of Being Earnest'

The Importance of Being Earnest, Oscar Wilde's classic farce comedy, will be the second production of the 1972 season of summer theatre presented by the Lexington for the Performing Arts Players, Route 42, Lexington. The play will run Friday and Saturday beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The Importance of Being Earnest was first produced in London in 1895, and is universally hailed as the great Victorian comedy of manners. The play revolves around the romantic adventures of two young gentlemen, Jack and Algernon, portrayed by Michael Fels and Tom Godfrey. The ladies they are courting, Cecily and Gwendolyn, are played by Daryn Feldman and Gila Sand.

Senior LPA Director Katherine Rosati, of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts faculty, New York City, directed the production. Staff Set Designer Wade Giampa has recreated Victorian England, working in conjunction with Costume Designer Jean Elliot. Lighting for the production was designed by Jonathan Lawson.

The LPA Playhouse is now in its fourth year of production of outstanding plays and musical comedies drawn from Broadway and experimental Off-Broadway theatre. The 1972 season will include such hits as the musical comedies, Company and Little Mary Sunshine, plus dramatic favorites, The Miracle Worker, Member of the Wedding, and Oh, Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad.

Three children's theatre productions will also be offered by the LPA Players. Two are original works by LPA staff director and playwright, Neal Thompson, and have been performed extensively during the past winter in the New York City area.

RESIDENT COMPANY MEMBERS of Lexington for the Performing Arts of Route 42, Lexington, rehearse for their next production, The Importance of Being Earnest. The comedy will be presented Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Members of the cast include Tom Godfrey, Gila Sand and Daryn Feldman.

A FORUM ABOUT MATURE WOMEN

Dear Margaret Brookfield:
I'm 49 years old. My two children are both married and away from home. My husband travels a lot. I seem to be very nervous all the time and very sad. Can you help me?

A. O.

Dear A. O.:
This is precisely the point in your life at which you should be helping yourself. Why not start by getting a check-up to see what shape you're in physically. Then you can begin to think about your state of mind. Since you're no longer tied down to the responsibilities and burdens of running a home and raising a family, the world should be your oyster. You might travel occasionally with your husband, particularly when he goes to cities where there are interesting tourist sights to see or possibly museums and theatres. Or you might go back to school for the sheer fun of it — or perhaps for a more serious purpose, such as working for a degree. Or you might join an organization dedicated to improving our polluted environment. Or you might become an expert on Chinese jade — or any other subject for that matter — by reading up everything on it you can find. So stop thinking you have nowhere to go from here. Start doing something for yourself for a change. You're on the threshold of a new life. But it's up to you to take advantage of it. Nobody else can do it for you.

Dear Margaret Brookfield:
I'm 18 years old and wondering how I might help

Amy Vanderbilt Says: There Is Need for Some Conventions

By PEACE MOFFAT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—"Many people think anything goes now, but this is not so. There is a need for certain conventions. And no matter what changes occur in the world, the human need for appreciation goes on."

So says Amy Vanderbilt, whose word is law in American etiquette, but who is so determined not to let etiquette lag behind the changing times that she has revised her monumental work on the subject, combining the traditional customs with the new ones.

In the bright office of her 100-year-old brownstone home here, Miss Vanderbilt discussed the recently published "Amy Vanderbilt's Etiquette." A warm, unpretentious woman, she makes etiquette sound as though it can—and should—be a part of one's everyday life.

"I feel there's more honesty now in social interchange, and this is good," she says. "But I think the danger is that we'll go too much the other way."

Miss Vanderbilt says she is constantly astounded at the points of etiquette people aren't aware of. "Etiquette used to be part of social folklore—things everybody was supposed to know," she says. "But now people have to be taught—whether at their mother's knee, through observation, or painful experiences. And it isn't just a matter of kindness and consideration either. All the kindness in the world will not get you through the eating of an artichoke."

Among the common mistakes people make, this expert points out, are improper table manners—like picking up with the fingers chicken cooked in sauce, or forgetting to wipe one's mouth before sipping a glass of wine; typing a signature on a letter instead of writing it out; woman using an incorrect signature; failing to reply to kindness or a gift as promptly as possible; and thinking that widows do not use their late husband's name.

Miss Vanderbilt says 50 percent of the questions she receives in the mail deal with weddings. "It's a time of great emotional involvement," she points out, "and people who have never thought about etiquette before do then."

While in favor of some changes in weddings, Miss Vanderbilt says she has been cautioning young people against forgetting all conventions. "I have been getting mail from young people who were married in some fanciful fashion, and who feel cheated and want a wedding in church now," she observes. "I have to say to them that from a social viewpoint you really can't do it."

Miss Vanderbilt calls huge weddings "awful" and says she has been inveighing lately against huge showers. "Showers should be for a few intimate friends," she points out, adding that there is more interest now in having joint showers for the bride and groom. "Brides are no longer isolated from the groom," she says, "and besides, they're probably living together anyway."

Miss Vanderbilt says she does all she can to keep up-to-date—pointing out that having children herself, it is difficult to be rigid.

"For instance," she says, "it is acceptable now for young people of opposite sexes to travel together." But she has words of caution for a couple who live together without benefit of a marriage license, and decide to have a child. "They're running counter to tradition, and eventually will come to the point where they have to come to terms with it. This will be at some point where legality is involved—such as the child entering school."

And in her book, she notes that young people who engage in premarital sex have a responsibility not to bring unwanted children into the world.

Famed Chamber Music Group to Perform Sunday at Maverick Hall

CURTIS STRING QUARTET

Curtis String Quartet will return to the stage at Maverick Hall in Woodstock on Sunday, July 16 at 3 p.m. Three members of the Quartet are the original founders: Jascha Brodsky, Max Aronoff and Orlando Cole. The distinguished young violinist, Yumi Ninomiya, joined the Quartet in 1969.

The Curtis Quartet is one of the oldest chamber music aggregations in the United States, and one of the best known. It has distinguished itself both here and abroad in more than 2500 concerts for two decades. Their superlative interpretations of the classical repertoire is far famed, and the sweep and style with which they perform has been a trademark of the group. Each member is a virtuoso and, in recent years, members have furthered their eminence individually as successful teachers on the faculties of the well-known New School of Music and the Curtis Institute, both of Philadelphia. The music critics and the press continually laud their unity of thought, tonal blending and exceptional technique. Said the Boston Globe's critic: "the most perfectly balanced quartet ever assembled."

Jascha Brodsky, first violin, after a notable European debut and widely acclaimed tours, came to this country where he concertized to critical approval: Yumi Ninomiya, second violin, is a native of Japan and by the age of 13 had made her professional debut with symphony orchestras. She is a graduate of Curtis Institute, and was a student of Jascha Brodsky; soloist with Philadelphia Orchestra, and a member of violin and chamber music faculty of the New School of Music; Max Aronoff, viola, as founder-director of the New School of Music and the Curtis Institute, has produced many of this country's prominent violinists and Orlando Cole cellist, a solo artist who has appeared with principal symphony orchestras, in recitals, on radio and TV in the U.S. as well in Canada. He also is on the faculties of the New School and the Curtis Institute.

As this concert promises to be well attended, patrons are advised to come early to secure good seats. Additional information is available by contacting Basil Eliescu of Woodstock.

California Plums Embellish Summer Meals

These gorgeous fresh California plums are here! About twenty major varieties — among which are Santa Rosa, President, Queen Ann, Kelsey, Sim-ka and Laroda, to name a few — will be appearing in your market from now into September.

When selecting fresh plums, choose fruit that has good color and yields slightly to gentle pressure. A softening at the tip is another sign of mature fruit.

Of course, it's our guess that out-of-hand eating is the most popular way to devour a fresh plum. But that tart and tangy flavor that is so characteristic of a fresh plum also adds a zippy taste to pies, cakes, salads, tarts, sauces, compotes or a variety of cheeses.

Tuck a few fresh plums into those picnic baskets, too. Plums are good travelers since they don't bruise as easily as other fruits.

Embellish your next cake and ice cream dessert with this Plum Wine Sauce for a lively gourmet treat. Make the presentation dramatic, too. Line your prettiest stemmed glasses with bars of pound cake; fill with vanilla ice cream and drizzle crimson rivalets of sparkling plum sauce all over. The result? A fantastic cake and ice cream sundae!

California plum growers recommend Santa Rosa, Burmese, Wickson, Mariposa, Laroda, Nubiana and Sim-ka as the best sauce-making plums.

Remember to can or freeze some of summer's plum bounty to brighten wintery meals, too. Plum jams, jellies or butters are always welcome breakfast pickers-uppers.

PLUM WINE SAUCE FOR CAKE AND ICE CREAM

Six ripe fresh California plums, pitted and diced
One cup rose or red dinner wine

One-half cup sugar
One tablespoon minced crystallized ginger

Two tablespoons cornstarch mixed with one quarter cup water

Pound cake
Vanilla ice cream

Combine plums, wine and sugar. Cook at a simmer until plums are soft. Stir in ginger and cornstarch mixture. Cook while stirring until mixture bubbles and thickens. Cool and then chill. Line a parfait glass with pieces of pound cake. Fill center with scoop of vanilla ice cream or ice cream balls (use a melon baller). Spoon sauce over ice cream. Serve at once. Makes about two cups.

PICTURE PRETTY—crimson plum sauce drizzled over cake and ice cream sundaes.

Waitress: "We have some fine salads..."

Woman on diet: "No, not a salad. What pies do you have?"

Waitress: "Apple, peach, cherry..."

Woman on diet: "Someone told me you have fine pecan pie. Have it today?"

Waitress: "Oh, yes, always. Pecan pie, then?"

Woman on diet: "Yes, the pecan. And with vanilla ice cream, please."

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post:

The question as to whether it is in bad taste to ask friends or members of your family the price of things — particularly how much they are paying for rent, or how much they paid for a house just purchased — has come up in my family.

Of course asking a mere acquaintance the price of a personal thing such as a dress or suit, I would definitely rule out, but is it also unacceptable to ask how much they paid for a painting that you happen to like and see in their house, or some other such object?

MRS. G.

Dear Mrs. G:

Although some may not mind at all, most people do not like to reveal what they pay for their possessions, whether it be a house or a piece of clothing. Or, of course, if they feel they have gotten a bargain. To go into someone's house and ask what he paid for this or that puts him on the spot. He may be embarrassed if he thinks it will seem extravagant, or if he paid so little that it is obviously not as valuable as it looks. And if he does not wish to tell you, he may appear silly or rude.

So, in short, don't ask. Your open admiration may bring forth the information without asking, but if it doesn't — it isn't any of your business anyway. Only if you are thinking of buying a similar item, might it be permissible to say, "I would love to have that type of chair in my living room, would you mind very much telling me approximately how much..."

Dear Mrs. Post:

We always thought the eldest son was supposed to automatically receive the family Bible after the parents' death, instead of the youngest married daughter. Is this the correct procedure according to Hoyle? Or are we in error? JAY

Dear Jay:

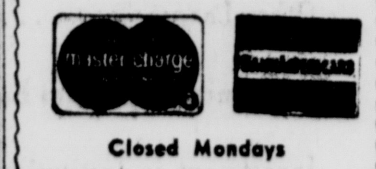

There is no rule about this, and it is not exactly a question of etiquette. But I can tell you that traditionally, the family Bible is passed from generation to generation through the eldest son.

Who do you tip? When, and how much? You will find the answers to these questions in my booklet "The Etiquette of Tipping." To get a copy, send thirty-five cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of The Daily Freeman.

Lessons to Learn From Unfaithful Friend

DEAR ABBY: The names are fictitious but I am telling it like it is: My name is Debbie. I have been dating a fellow named John. I mentioned to John that Linda, a good friend of mine, is fantastically well put together. John calls Linda and asks her for a date. Linda accepts. She then tells Carol (who is also a friend of mine) about her date with John. Carol tells me. Naturally I am humiliated and angry.

I contend that when John called Linda, she should have refused him immediately saying she and I were good friends, and then hung up the phone. Furthermore, Linda shouldn't have told Carol or anyone else about her date with John because it made me look like a fool.

My friends contend that everything worked out for the best and I am lucky to have found out that John was bad news. What is your opinion?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: Your friends are right. But there are several lessons to be learned here:

- (1) Never "mention" to a boy friend that another girl is "fantastically well put together." (He may not be able to resist the challenge to "take her apart.")
- (2) If a man is interesting, few girls, out of loyalty to a girl friend, will pass up a chance to date him.
- (3) Your friend Linda talks too much.
- (4) So does Carol.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 65 years old, and have no family. Do you think I am too old to learn to drive an automobile? Some of my friends laughed at me when I mentioned learning to drive at my age.

If I could drive I wouldn't have to wait for friends to take me shopping and to church and other places I might want to go.

Have any of your readers learned to drive at my age? If you think I'm too old, I'll sell the practically new car I have had in my garage ever since my husband died nearly a year ago. Thank you for any help you can give me.

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

MINNESOTA WIDOW
DEAR WIDOW: There is no age limit for learning to drive in your state. You will need a learning permit, however, which can be obtained by taking a written test. (Inquire at your Motor Vehicle Department.)

If you obtain the permit, driving lessons are available at the AAA and driver education schools, listed in your phone book. You will then be given a driver's test to determine whether you can become a licensed driver. Sixty-five is NOT old, my dear lady. Not if you have your health and good vision.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died nearly two years ago. My family has been wonderful to me. My immediate neighbors were very considerate the day of the funeral. They came with food, etc., but from that day until this I have not heard a word from any of them. (I am not complaining. I kept myself very busy, and didn't brood about my loss.)

Four weeks ago I slipped off and quietly married a very nice gentleman I had known for years. I had intended to invite my neighbors in and introduce him, but I guess I wasn't quick enough because

I just got a call from a friend of mine telling me that I had better hurry up and announce my marriage because my neighbors were "talking."

It seems they just found out I had a man living with me and they think we are living in sin. I think it's rather funny. What are your thoughts on this, and what should I do?

LEGALLY MARRIED "SINNER"

DEAR "SINNER": Don't tell them anything. Let them "find out" you're married, just like they found out you had a man living with you.

DEAR ABBY: When an unmarried woman is asked by a rude and insensitive woman, "How come a gal like you isn't married?" I tell her to come back with, "How come a gal like you IS married?"

"SAME BOAT"

DEAR ABBY: My husband passed away some time ago. We had a wonderful life together and I never expect to replace him, but I must consider making a new life for myself as I am not yet 50.

My question: When may a widow remove her wedding ring? I have children, and men I meet think I'm married, and no respectable man would look twice at a married woman.

On the other hand, if I remove my rings I might be mistaken for a divorcee. What should I do?

YOUNG WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: Since you are obviously in the market for another husband, remove your rings. You can quickly let it be known that you are a widow, not a divorcee, if you think men prefer widows which, by the way, ain't necessarily so.

DEAR ABBY: I shall be 77 years of age when I graduate from college at the end of this semester.

Frankly, I am not a gift-giver, neither do I appreciate gifts, which presents a problem. How do I invite people to my graduation without being "bothered" by a gift, and the annoyance of acknowledging receipt?

I am just happy to have my friends attend such an occasion, and that is all.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: On each invitation you could add, "Positively no gifts, please." But be prepared to have your request ignored by some.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM S. MYER of Mt. Marion celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 9 at a buffet supper, given by their children at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hunter of Mt. Marion. Married Sept. 23, 1922 at Reformed Church parsonage in West Park by the Rev. George C. Gulnick. Mr. and Mrs. Myer are the parents of three daughters: Peggy, wife of Glenn Hunter, Mt. Marion; Barbara, wife of Cal M. Hunter, U. S. Marine Corps, Calif.; and Jean, wife of James E. O'Hara of Hurley. They also have eight grandchildren. The party was held at this time so that Cal Hunter, who reports for duty in Okinawa later this month, could attend with his family. Mr. and Mrs. Myer have lived in Mt. Marion for 50 years. Meat Prices at All-Time High Meat prices are the highest ever, with no relief in sight, according to the New York State Market and Consumer Information Service. This most consumers probably have found out by this time. However, what they don't know is that retail meat prices are not indicative of the real price situation. Many stores are showing profits on pork and beef cuts to stay competitive. If they tried to make past years profits, retail prices would be much higher.

Sale items are a slight relief to the situation and even though each store may have decreased their number of items featured, each area will have a varied situation. It pays to shop.

In the beef line look for boneless ham 88 cents, bacon from 65 cents to 79 cents and specials in sirloin steak from $1.28 to $1.39, sirloin tip and top sirloin steak $1.49. T bone steak from $1.48 to $1.59 and porterhouse $1.48 to $1.58. Chuck steak will feature from 59 cents to 65 cents and boneless from 95 cents to 1.09. Rib steak and cube steaks will be in the $1.29 to $1.49 range. Also featured will be ground beef around 68 cents. Beef liver 59 cents and stew meat at 99 cents. Corned beef will be featured from 69 cents to 99 cents and franks from 69 cents to 89 cents.

Pork features will run mostly to ham and shoulder cuts such as smoked ham shank end 49 cents, butt end 59 cents, smoked boneless shoulder butts 99 cents, smoked picnics 49 cents, semi-link sausage 99 cents. Canned hams will be on sale with three lb. size $3.39, five lb. $5.19 and eight lb. $7.99.

A few stores will feature lamb with imported leg roasts from 78 cents to 99 cents and shoulder roasts at 49 cents, also shoulder chops at 59 cents.

Poultry will be on sale in most areas with whole fryers 29 cents to 33 cents, quarter cut 39 cents and leg quarters 39 cents. Turkey will be featured from 39 cents to 45 cents and are an excellent buy.

Milner Joins Injury List

Are There Other Misfortunes Left for Mets?

ANOTHER INJURY — Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson (L) looks at his fallen teammate, left fielder John Milner as umpire Chris Pelekoudas signals "safe" in third inning of game with Giants Tuesday. Milner and Harrelson collided while going for a pop fly hit by the Giants' Chris Speier. The shortstop seemingly caught the ball for the third out, but it was knocked from his glove when Milner crashed into him. The ball dropped in for a double and two runs scored. Milner, complaining of a sore neck, was taken to a hospital. Giants won, 6-1. (UPI)

NEW YORK (AP) — Charlie Fox, manager of the San Francisco Giants, knows what Yogi Berra is going through as manager of the New York Mets.

"I was in the same spot when we got off to a slow start," said the skipper of the revived Giants, who whipped the Mets 6-1 for the second straight time Tuesday night at Shea Stadium.

It was the 14th victory for the Giants in their last 17 games and the Mets' sixth defeat in their last seven.

The only bright spot for the Mets was that Pittsburgh lost, too. That meant the Mets didn't lose any ground to the first place Pirates in the National League East, remaining 4½ games back.

Southpaw Ron Bryant held the Mets to only two hits. Both of them came in the fifth—doubles by Ted Martinez and Wayne Garnett—and they accounted for the Mets' lone tally.

Later in the same inning the Mets loaded the bases with one out, but Bud Harrelson flied to Ken Henderson and the Giant left fielder threw out Garrett trying to score for an inning-ending double play.

Bryant, who won his fourth straight, said he was concerned with pacing himself in the muggy weather. "I concentrated on going the distance."

The Giants still are 13 games behind Cincinnati in the NL West, but "if we keep going, we'll get a chance," Fox said. "I don't know how much worse it can get," said Berra after outfielder John Milner was added to the Mets' list of injured.

Milner suffered a neck injury when he and shortstop Harrelson collided in the third on Chris Speier's pop fly that popped out of Harrelson's glove for a two-run double. Milner was carried off the field on a stretcher, while Harrelson escaped injury and remained in the game.

Already on the Mets hospital list are outfielders Rusty Staub, Cleon Jones, Tommie Agee as well as utilityman Jim Beauchamp.

Willie McCovey's homer put the Giants ahead 1-0 in the second and Speier's two-run double in the third made it 3-0, sufficient to snap the six-game winning streak of Jerry Koosman for the Mets.

Carlton... Happy With Script

By UPI

Steve Carlton is happy with the script despite a weak cast of supporting actors.

Carlton, traded by an unhappy Gussie Busch during the off-season, recorded his seventh straight victory Tuesday night as the weak-hitting Philadelphia Phillies won two games in a row for the first time in a month with a 4-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Busch, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, became unhappy with Carlton because of a bitter salary squabble two years ago. He traded the veteran left-hander to the Phillies in exchange for Rick Wise.

Carlton, tied with Gary Nolan of Cincinnati for the league lead in victories with 12, raised his major-league leading strike out total to 182 with eight strikeouts. It was Carlton's fifth straight complete game.

The victory was the second in three decisions for the Phillies under the direction of new field manager Paul Owens who doubles as the club's general manager.

Carlton got all the runs he needed in the second when the Phils battered starter Don Sutton for four runs on a three-run double by Don Money and an RBI single by Denny Doyle.

In other National League games Cincinnati blanked Pittsburgh 5-0, San Francisco defeated New York 6-1, Atlanta defeated St. Louis 5-4 in 15 innings, Chicago and Houston split a doubleheader with the Astros taking the opener, 6-5 and the Cubs capturing the nightcap 9-5, and Montreal edged San Diego 6-5 in 12 innings.

Johnny Bench backed up Jack Billingham's shutout pitching with four straight hits, including his 22nd home run of the season, and drove home three runs as the Reds shut out Pittsburgh.

Bench's homer, coming off rookie righthander Gene Garber, was the last of his four hits and put him ahead of San Francisco's Dave Kingman in the National League's home run derby. The Reds' catcher also leads the league in RBI with 66.

Marty... Two Bad Pitches

By United Press International

Marty Pattin threw only two bad pitches all night. The first cost him peace of mind and the second cost him a lifetime dream.

In the second inning of Tuesday night's game at Oakland, Pattin hit A's third baseman Sal Bando with a pitch "that just got away."

With one out in the ninth inning, he threw a fastball "that I got up a little too high" and Reggie Jackson jumped on it for a single. It was the only hit of the game off the Boston righthander.

Pattin settled for a one-hitter and his fourth consecutive victory as the Red Sox whipped Oakland, 4-0, for their ninth success in their last 11 outings.

When it was over, Pattin was more concerned about Bando than about his lost glory.

"I'm just glad that Sal's okay," said the 29-year-old journeyman pitcher, one of 10 players involved in a deal between Boston and Milwaukee last winter. "It took about two innings to concentrate on the game after that. The pitch just got away and froze. That happens sometimes. I was worried and shook up for a while."

Pattin had three no-hitters in high school, but was foiled in an earlier bid to throw one in shading the Kansas City majors when Tom Satriano of the Angels broke one up against him in 1969 with two out in the eighth inning.

One of my biggest dreams has been to pitch a no-hitter in the big leagues," admitted Pattin, who walked three batters and struck out seven. "I guess this is the closest I will ever come."

The Chicago White Sox closed to within 4 1/2 games of first-place Oakland in the American League West by edging the Cleveland Indians, 4-3, and Detroit remained one game in front of Baltimore in the East by beating the Texas Rangers, 6-5, while the Orioles were in shading the Kansas City Royals, 2-1, in 10 innings.

Elsewhere, the New York Yankees beat the California Angels, 7-3, and the Milwaukee Brewers tripped the Minnesota Twins, 5-4.

Carlton Fisk drove in two of Boston's runs with his 11th homer and a single as the Red Sox tagged Joel Horlen with his first loss after two triumphs. Jackson's hit came on a 2-2 count.

The White Sox, trailing 3-1, rallied for three runs in the seventh as Rick Reichardt hit a two-run homer and Ed Spiezio followed with a solo shot. Ray Fosse had hit a two-run homer for Cleveland.

Mickey Stanley snapped a 5-5 tie with his ninth homer of the year in the sixth inning and Chuck Seelbach limited Texas to two hits over the final 3 2/3 innings to gain his fifth victory for the Tigers. Dave Nelson had a homer for the Rangers.

Pinch-hitter Tom Shopay drew a walk with the bases loaded and none out in the 10th to enable Baltimore to snap a five-game losing streak. Jim Palmer went the distance for the Orioles, allowing Kansas City seven hits, to stretch his record to 12-4.

Yanks Top Angels, 7-3

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Felipe Alou drilled a two-run single and Ron Swoboda delivered a double to drive in two more tallies to highlight a six-run third inning Tuesday night and the New York Yankees went on to beat the California Angels, 7-3.

The Yankees sent 10 men to the plate in the third, collecting six hits and chasing Angel starter Rudy May.

Fritz Peterson went the distance to earn his eighth win against 10 losses, allowing nine hits. May was charged with his seventh loss in nine decisions.

With one out in the third, Horace Clarke singled to left and Thurman Munson then was awarded first base on catcher's interference. Bobby Murcer singled in Clarke and Roy White followed with a double past diving third baseman Ken McMullen to bring home Munson.

May was then lifted and Alou greeted reliever Rick Clark with a single to left to score Murcer and White. Swoboda capped the inning with his two-run double off the center field fence.

Murcer drove in Clarke with a sacrifice fly in the fourth to give New York a 7-0 bulge.

The Angels tallied single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings with Leo Cardenas driving in two of them with his fifth homer of the season and a single.

Eddie Fisher pitched the final inning for California and equaled Hoyt Wilhelm's American League record of 570 relief appearances.

Bulls Need a Court

By BERT ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Chicago Bulls were without a home court today, while the Boston Celtics, Atlantic Division champions of the National Basketball Association, had only their second sole owner in their 26-year history.

The Bulls have played the last five seasons in Chicago Stadium, after playing in the Chicago Amphitheatre in 1966-67, their first season in the league.

At present, they have no lease for next season for either arena.

They could play in the Amphitheatre, which holds about 10,500 for basketball, if the league's Board of Governors repurchases, a $5.0 million offer to purchase the club by a nine-man group from Milwaukee and Chicago, headed by Marvin L. Fishman, a Milwaukee realtor.

The Board rejected Tuesday the Fishman group offer to buy the Bulls from Elmer Rich.

NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy indicated that the Governors did not approve the offer because the Bulls were unable to obtain a lease for the Stadium.

Tuesday, Fishman said his group had signed a three-year lease with the Amphitheatre, but the board still turned down the offer.

"I'm disappointed by the temporary setback our group received," said Fishman. "I would like to emphasize the word temporary. We intend to pursue every legal action to assume our acquisition of the team."

Should the efforts of the Fishman group fail, the Bulls could be sold to a group including Arthur Wirtz, owner of the 19,500-seat Stadium. It has been reported that with the rejection of Fishman, approval is expected to be given to the Wirtz group, which has a 10-year lease at favorable rental terms ready for the Bulls.

Ferraro Plans Include Mates

KINGSTON can't be guaranteed the same good locations if more tickets have to be ordered," noted Ferraro Day Committee Co-Chairmen Len Cane, Ed Palladino, and Charles J. Tiano. The original allotment of tickets is for reserved seats behind third base.

Tickets can be purchased from the following committee members: Fred Davi, Pete Esposito, Joe DeCicco, Ernie Smith, Thomas Lyle, Skip Aiello, Len Cane, Mayor Francis Koenig, Joe Tremper, Irv Zquilling, Chill Caruso, and Charles Marable.

The next meeting of the Ferraro Committee will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Organizations or teams wishing to give Ferraro a gift are asked to contact committee members at the office of Mayor Koenig, general coordinator of the event.

Bud Colleton, Kingston's last major leager, is honorary chairman for Ferraro Day.

Ferraro, the Brewer third baseman who is only the second local player ever to reach the big time, will be feted in ceremonies between games of a Yankee-Milwaukee doubleheader on that day.

Tickets for the event are still available on a first-come, first-serve basis, but they are dwindling to a precious few. The cost for the ducat is $10. That charge covers not only admission to the twin-bill but also bus fare and a donation towards a gift for Ferraro. There are also a limited number of $5 seats available to those who wish to drive to the Stadium by car.

These seats are all within vicinity of each other and we

Bostics Win At Wiltwyck

KINGSTON Forgive Harvey Bostic if he doesn't stop to chat — he's probably on his way to a golf tournament. The Wiltwyck champ does more hustling to get to a course these days than he does on it.

Like last Sunday, Harvey started the day out leading the field going with the third round of the Herdegen Memorial, then fired a two-over 72 at the Rondout Pool, Golf and Tennis Association links for a record-smashing 18-stroke victory, then raced back to Kingston where he joined his wife Pappy, for Wiltwyck's Husband-Wife Tournament.

The Bostics, with a low gross 178, won that one too (another 72 for Harvey). It came out to two trophies for two separate tournaments at two separate courses in one day. Both wins were successful defenses of 1971 titles.

The Husband-Wife Tourney was the largest in the Kingston club's history with 52 couples entered. Other top prizes went to Rosse and Dr. Sid Pauker whose 144 captured the low net honors, and to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swithers and Mr. and Mrs. Don Distel who tied at 64 in the best ball with handicap event.

Runnerup in best ball were Mr. and Mrs. Walt Burger, Mr. and Mrs. Walt Burger, Mr. and Mrs. Werner Koln and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parnett, all with 65. Second in low gross were Marilyn and Art Motzkin with a 181 total.

At 66 were the Robert Graves, and at 67 were the Samuel Levines and at 68 were the Gary Allreds, the Leon Randalls, the Clifford Spiesmans, the Robert Friedmans and the Gerald Overbaughs. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Motzkin and Mr. and Mrs. Sy Werbalowsky shot 69's.

WCC Juniors Up M-H Margin

HUDSON Twaalfskill 389, Stone Dock 406 and Red Hook 414.

DeForest also captured low net honors with 72, one shot up on Maneen, Spiesman, Mark Bartel of Stone Dock, and Mike Dulin of Twaalfskill. Dulin trailed Maneen, Thomas and Joe Demski of Colombia by one stroke in the gross division with an 45-39, 84.

Wednesday, July 19, competition resumes at the Woodstock Country Club with Wiltwyck out to widen the gap. The leaders stand at 1044 strokes through the three rounds of 1066 for Catskill and 1110 for Twaalfskill.

Red Hook holds the fourth position at 1155, followed by Woodstock 1157, Colombja 1161, Sawyerkill 1175 and Stone Dock 1234.

Wiltwyck's junior golf team upped its lead in the Mid-Hudson Junior Golf Classic to 22 strokes Monday, as the locals fired a third round 344 to edge second place Catskill by 12 shots at the Colombia Country Club course.

A. J. Maneen and Bob Thomas fired 83's, Jeff Werbalowsky carded 88 and Randy Spiesman added a 90 for the winning score. Maneen and Thomas tied for second in the individual low gross division behind Catskill's John DeForest who shot 42-38, 80.

In team results, Woodstock's aggregation took the third slot at 370, Sawyerkill placed fourth with 373, and host Colombia fired 383 for fifth. Other totals:

Games 1 and 1000... One-Hit Shutouts

SAUGERTIES A lot has happened from the time the Saugerties Softball League started back in 1960 to the present, but Game No. 1 twelve years had an amazing similarity to Game No. 1000 played Saturday: both were one-hitters.

The 1972 version was an 8-0 whitewash by Harold Swart of Mahogany Ridge over Village Barn in the White Division.

Other White loop games had Friendly Inn beating Nationwide Insurance 10-3; Eveready Beverages topping Village Barn, 9-7; and Mahogany Ridge defeating Nationwide, 12-2. In the Red Division, Glasco A.C. tripped Calbe T.V., 10-5; and Ted's Esso knocking off Sperl's Pakkers, 7-1. Rosner's Hooples scored an 8-7 victory over Knights of Columbus in the Blue Division.

A single in the sixth inning was the only tarnish on the 100th game win by Swart. Jeb Bond led the Ridge attack with a single, triple, and two runs batted in while Alan Kane and Swart each added a pair of singles.

Jack Lechner was four-for-four as Friendly Inn stopped Nationwide. Lenny Robinson chipped in with three hits. Gary Myers led the losers with two hits and two runs batted in.

Home runs by Al Goodwin, Tom Silk, and Ray Scally powered Eveready over Village Barn. Goodwin also singled twice. Dit Meyer singled and doubled for the Barn and Joe Hinchey drove in three runs.

The Ridge beat Nationwide with a four-inning stopper. Kane, Bond, Billy Berks, and Grant Crum each had two hits.

Glasco A.C. won their third straight Red Division game behind the hitting of Ray Lasher who laced two hits and drive in two runs.

John Brown's single, double, and homer pushed Ted's over Sperl's. Robby O'Connor stroked three singles and the father-son duo of Florie and Rich Lareau each had two hits.

Rosner's won their sixth in a row but had to hang on as the Knights rallied for four runs in the top of the seventh. Herb Whitaker had the big stick for Hooples with a single, homer and four RBI's. Jim Nolan had a single and a double driving in three for the losers.

Nicklaus Thinks About One Thing... Winning

POWERFUL DRIVE — Jack Nicklaus makes powerful drive from fourth tee during practice round Tuesday for the 101st British Open Golf Championship which began today. Victory in the four-day tournament would make Nicklaus — the shortest priced favorite in history at 9-1 — unquestionably the most successful champion golfer of all time. (UPI) MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus went into one of the most vital golf tournaments of his illustrious career today with his mind fixed on winning the British Open title and consciously blocking out thoughts of achieving the Grand Slam.

Britain's legal bookies have made the 32-year-old American an overwhelming favorite to win his third British crown, over Muirfield's windy links beside the Firth of Forth.

After seven practice rounds on the 6,892-yard, par 36-35-71 layout, Nicklaus said: "My game is in reasonable shape. I have pretty much made up my mind what I will do when the chips are down."

Thousands of golf fans besieged the course southeast of Edinburgh as play began for the 101st championship with prize money totaling about $120,000.

The main focus was on Nicklaus, who needs the British title to complete the third leg of the Grand Slam—sweeping the four major pro tourneys. He already has won the of the Masters and U.S. Open. The British Open and the PGA at Birmingham, Mich., next month would complete the sweep.

On the eve of the British Open, Nicklaus mused: "The Grand Slam only becomes realistic if I win here. So I'm concentrating on that."

Nicklaus planned to sleep late because he was among the late starters.

Defending champion Lee Trevino had a much earlier starting time.

The bookies listed Nicklaus as 9-1 favorite, with Trevino second choice at 6-1 and Gary Player of South Africa third at 12-1.

Britain's Tony Jacklin, another former titleholder, was a 16-1 shot while Billy Casper and Arnold Palmer were 20-1.

Trevino played only two practice rounds, but was brimming with confidence. "Of course, I can win," he said. "I wouldn't bother coming here if I thought I couldn't."

It Is Simply The Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Only in the United States is it called the British Open.

Elsewhere in the world it is simply The Open.

This is The Open. The others carry a demeaning prefix. Like the United States Open. Or the Canadian Open. Or the Tasmanian Open.

This is particularly true in Britain, where they blithely ignore the existence of any other open golf championship. It's more particularly true in Scotland. It's most particularly true around Muirfield, which has some considerable claims to being the birthplace of the game.

It was in this area, some 16 miles southeast of Edinburgh Castle which crouches on a hilltop in Scotland's capital, in 1744 that golf's first organization was formed, the honorable Company of Edinburgh golfers.

The company, which still conducts the affairs of Muirfield, was organized to play a four-hole course not far from the present site hard by the Firth of Forth on the East coast of Scotland.

And they drew up the game's first set of rules, 13 of them.

The first rule was: "The tee shall be not more than one club length from the hole."

The second rule was: "The tee shall be on the ground."

Joe Dey, a noted historian, former head of the USA and now commissioner of the Tournament Players Division of the PGA explained about rule No. 1.

"This, of course, was before there were wooden tees. The player would reach into the hole to get a handful of sand and pour it on the ground to form a tee. Now, there was no rule covering uniformity of the size of the hole. So as the day went on and more players went through, the hole got bigger and bigger.

"But, teeing it up one club length from the hole, can you imagine what the putting green looked like?"

Jack Nicklaus' drive for a Grand Slam has attracted world wide interest in the British Open, the third of four titles needed for the unprecedented sweep.

A total of 392 writers, reporters and photographers—excluding television personnel—were accredited for the 101st championship, the most ever.

Galleries in excess of 7,000 watched practice rounds Monday and Tuesday and officials expected record crowds for the tournament proper.

"I should think the total crowd for the tournament should be around 100,000," press officers George Simms said, and smiled. "If the weather and Jack Nicklaus both continue to be good."

The favored Nicklaus was assigned car sticker No. 1. His hotel room is No. 1. At dinner the other night, the captain showed him to his table.

Investigation revealed that it was table No. 4.

"Could I have table No. 1?" Jack asked politely.

It was arranged immediately.

Braves Meet Beacon

KINGSTON

The Kingston Braves of the Hudson Valley Rookie League have suffered so many injuries lately that it's tough to keep up with all the switches they've been forced to make in the schedule.

Tonight, for example, the Braves were to go to Poughkeepsie. Instead they'll play in Dietz Stadium at 8 p.m. against the Beacon Astros. And Friday, when Beacon was supposed to be in town, now is a home date with Poughkeepsie.

The best news for Kingston is that Player-Manager Gary Dross has found a new arm. He's Don Lackey, former Kingston High School performer, who has joined the thin Braves mound corps and will work against Beacon. This enables Dross to save the rest of the staff, Tom Gallo, for Friday's confrontation with the league-leading Lasers.

Kingston trails Poughkeepsie by one game in the first round loss column.

SPL Pitchers' Duel

KINGSTON

There's nothing more unusual than a pitchers' duel in the City Slow Pitch League but that's just what occurred in Lower Hasbrouck Park Tuesday when Lou's Astro Subs eked out a 2-1 win over Schadrack's.

Elsewhere, Central Hudson rallied to beat Colonial Cash Register, 8-6; Carriage House stopped Edgar II, 14-11; Circle Cab trimmed La Lima, 14-6; and Born Losers beat West Pierpont Market, 13-3.

Rick Clausi of Lou's got the better of the mound thriller against his counterpart on Schadrack's, Jim Conklin. The losers scored a second inning run and nothing else while Lou's put across one in the fifth and the winner in the seventh. Gene Carpenter's two hits paced Lou's, while Conklin stroked a pair for Schadrack's and Gary Rome tripled.

A five-run seventh, highlighted by Floyd Dooris' inside the park homer, pushed Central Hudson past Colonial. Dooris, Gary Miller, Tim Gavin, and Bill Burger each had three hits with Miller and Bob De-George Rolfe lined three hits for the losers.

Carriage House scored six times in the sixth and then held off a late Edgar rally. Mike Jordan had four hits, Tom Reinhardt tripled, Tom McGowan sliced three hits including a homer, and John Cook slammed a circuit clout for the victorious Carriage team.

BRL: Miron Stops Knights

A late Knights of Columbus rally fell short in Loughran Park Tuesday and enabled Miron to come away with a 5-4 Babe Ruth League victory.

In another BRL game, KPA beat Rock Construction, 6-4.

A two-run single by Jim Amato in the top of the first gave the Knights a quick lead. But Miron came back with three of its own in the bottom of the first, the big blow being a two-run homer by Steve Engelhardt.

When Rich Bell knocked in a pair with a single in the third, Miron had all it needed.

Lou Eccleston was the winner and Bob McCabe the loser.

KPA managed only two hits against Rock, both in the fourth inning, but the safeties drove in three runs and pushed them to their victory.

Don Van Loan was the winner and John Ackert the loser.

Chiefs' Robinson Retiring Today

LIBERTY, Mo. (UPI)—John Robinson, one of the last of the original American Football League players in 1960, is retiring after 12 years with the Kansas City Chiefs.

The formal announcement will be made later today at a news conference in Coach Hank Stram's office at the team's training camp site.

Robinson, 32, is the last of the original Chiefs, who began with the old Dallas Texans before the club moved to Kansas City in 1963.

The free safety, many times an all-pro choice, has not recovered from a groin injury he suffered in the playoff loss to Miami last Christmas Day.

Robinson did not attend the Chiefs' annual picture-day session Tuesday, and it was then that United Press International learned he would not return. When a reporter asked Stram when Robinson would show up, the coach answered tersely, "he won't." Stram did not elaborate. Other sources said Robinson automatically qualifying her for the championship competition.

Robinson owns a health club in Kansas City, Kan.

He was a halfback in the same backfield with Billy Cannon on Louisiana State's 1959 national championship team. He was the Detroit Lions' No. 1 draft choice in 1960, but chose to sign with the fledgling Texans and the AFL.

Robinson was running back for two years before switching to defense in 1962.

In 10 years as a safety, Robinson intercepted 57 passes. He intercepted 10 passes in 1966 and 1970 and was a vital cog in the Chiefs' defense, which carried them to two Super Bowl games.

In Super Bowl IV, when the Chiefs upended the Minnesota Vikings, Robinson played with three broken ribs. He recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass in the 23-7 victory.

Robinson suffered an assortment of injuries during his career, perhaps the most serious being a head injury in 1967, which caused frequent dizzy spells.

Ricci Wins Accord Race

Rich Ricci took his first feature win of the season Friday night at Accord Speedway. Driving the No. 406 in the sportsmen division, Ricci nosed out runner-up John Penning and Independence Day winner Bobby Brueckner.

Wayne Tyler was first in the sedan feature. Howard Cornish took second, and John Fitzgerald roared in third.

The novice race went to Duane Mickle, Nick Mercurio and Mickey Avery trailed him. A demolition derby is scheduled on Friday's card in addition to the regular program.

Miss Smith Leads State Women

CLAYVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Lancy Smith of Snyder led a field of about 80 contestants seeking to qualify Tuesday for the four-day 43rd New York State Women's Amateur Golf Championship Tournament at the Cedar Lake Country Club here.

Miss Snyder, a member of the U.S. Curtis Golf Team, shot a 78 on a par 72 course still soggy with recent rains, leading 32 other women who shot 92 or less to qualify for the 36-hole championship flight in the tournament.

The remainder will compete in three flights but will not be eligible for the top spots in the tournament.

New York City Ballet Opens Stravinsky Series

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The New York City Ballet Company opened its Salute to Stravinsky series at Saratoga Performing Arts Center Tuesday night before an enthusiastic and near-capacity crowd.

The three ballets, Apollo, Agon and Firebird, had been performed during previous summer seasons at Saratoga, but tonight the Stravinsky Saratoga premieres are to begin.

The more than two dozen ballets set to music of the late Igor Stravinsky are to be danced in sets on six different nights of the ballet's July season. The ballets many brand new, were performed to almost universal acclaim last month in New York.

The Firebird, a favorite of Saratoga audiences, finished Tuesday's program on a colorful note. The costumes designed by painter Marc Chagall caused the dancers some trouble, but along with his backdrop paintings drew gasps of awe.

A companion feature at Saratoga is an exhibit of paintings by Stravinsky's widow. He died in April, 1971, after a long and fertile musical life.

Compositions on the program for the Salute to Stravinsky include concertos for piano, winds and violin as well as a symphony, etudes and program music like Firebird.

TV Missed Convention Update

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television did its customary good job covering the opening of the Democratic convention Monday, but did anyone recall the enormously significant story it could have updated — and didn't?

It is quite a tale. It is the still-unended story that began four years ago at the violence-punctuated Democratic convention in Chicago, during and after which people who claimed to represent the so-called "silent majority" began to attack network coverage, and haven't let up.

You will recall that many persons were furious at the attention the networks gave the dissenters at the Chicago mess, although television was simply covering the whole story — and brilliantly. When the violence broke out, many viewers seemed upset that video trained its cameras on it, as though the bearer of bad tidings were guilty of the event itself.

At any rate, this disaffection with television by some of the public was just the start of what has become a critical situation for video. If there had not been this public upset, for instance, Vice President Agnew would surely have not caused such a sensation with his criticism of network news.

Much similar criticism was launched against the networks, capitalizing on the undoubted anger of segments of the audience. There is still a feeling in certain media quarters that this hangover of disaffection, plus the avalanche of bad news for so long from Vietnam and elsewhere, has created virtually an anti-video syndrome among many viewers.

With them, the medium is indeed the message. If television shows bad news, then television is bad news, and better to just tune out.

But, in great part because of the anti-video-news feeling, television came up with at least one significant alteration that's sweeping the nation's home screens — and that is the suddenly increased attention being paid to so-called "good news."

Haven't you noticed how suddenly friendly and informal, and occasionally trivial some of your local newscasters have become? This is to show you that newsmen are really good guys even though they bring you bad news. You see, the bad news really isn't their fault.

But television failed Monday to fully connect all the strands that led to today, including itself. There are historic ironies at the convention, but television continues to ignore its involvement in them, which is inevitable by its very nature.

There was time to go into wave of events of which it has this in the early going Monday been a key part since 1968. But even before the expected television again chose to ignore battle over seating of delegates itself as a fact of history.

broke out in full. Pictorially, the networks were splendid as usual, and their reporters are, by and large, excellent. A convention is a great show, and ABC-TV's abbreviated coverage just doesn't capture the total flavor of the gavel-to-gavel reporting of CBS-TV and NBC-TV.

In his convention speech Monday, Democratic Party Chairman Lawrence O'Brien, with the aid of colorful film clips, noted the change in the kind of delegates. It was another chance for video to recall the highly significant wave of events of which it has been a key part since 1968. But even before the expected television again chose to ignore battle over seating of delegates itself as a fact of history.
